DELAY IN LEWIS SENTENCE RAISES COAL PEACE HOPES

Council Acts to Speed Reservoir

Purchase of Last Land for Project Nears Completion

Land-Clearing Bids To Be Accepted Next Week.

Plans for the on-time completion of Mansfield's $1,000,000 Clear Fork reservoir were kept rolling today as the city prepared to purchase some of the last acreage needed and accept bids for a land-clearing contract.

In addition, the city was in a position to bargain for land on which it will locate the project's purification plant and was hoping to complete, by next week, negotiations for virtually the last land required for the reservoir.

Last night city council authorized the purchase from Bertha Nichols of 158 acres of land for $16,500. Next week a special meeting is to be held to bargain for some of the 200 acres owned by R. O. McFarland.

The city's land purchaser, Neil S. Robinson, was authorized to procure sales agreements for 14 acres of land for the purification plant and a road right-of-way to permit relocation of State Route 97. The tract is to be adjacent to the Hershey well site.

To Appropriate Funds.

Next Tuesday, bids are to be accepted on a clearing contract and following the receipt of bids, council is to meet to appropriate funds to cover the contract costs. It tabled such action last night until bids are in and one is deemed acceptable.

City Engineer W. C. Statler urged speed in letting of the land clearing contract, pointing out that the current season is a good one for such work. Swamps, in which much of the clearing will be done, are low now, he said.

The dam for the project is already under construction and is to be completed sometime in August next year. First water is to flow to the city in October, 1948. The project is designed to triple the city's water supply.

* * *

Other Actions.

In a two and a half hour meeting during which the need for speed in completing the reservoir often was emphasized, council also appropriated an additional $4,000 for electrical pumping power for the water department.

Service-Safety Director William W. Enlow said the city's "pumpage" is on the up-trend and that "all wells are going at full capacity."

A $410 pump rental fee was set up to enable the continued operation of an emergency well brought into play again last summer. Purchase of a pump for the well is impossible at this time, councilmen said.

In addition, while putting up for sale the city's Longview pumping station property, council retained the water rights on the property as an emergency measure in the event that well had to be brought back into use for the city proper. It is being used for industrial purposes now.

Garbage-Trash Fee Hiked to $13.20 Per Year.

Beginning Feb. 1, it'll cost the average Mansfielder $13.20 a year to have ashes and garbage collected. It now costs $7.20.

After months of study, city council last night approved finally a revised refuse collection ordinance. It sets up a $6 a year ash-rubbish collection fee. Currently there is none.

The new ash-rubbish fee is solely responsible for the nearly 100 per cent boost in refuse collection costs. It is designed to pull that branch of the refuse department out of the red and to improve service.

Residents who burn gas or oil will be charged only $3 a year for rubbish collection service, thus their total yearly bill—for garbage and rubbish combined—will be $10.20.

Persons who have ashes will be charged the $6 a year for ash-rubbish collection.

The garbage collection fee remains at $7.20 for all customers.

* * *

Payable In Advance.

Bills will be payable in advance, semi-annually, and only subscribers to the garbage service will be eligible for ash-rubbish service.

The garbage fee provides for collection of 10 gallons of garbage each week. The $6 rubbish fee provides for the monthly collection of nine bushels (or 300 pounds) of rubbish. If more of either type of refuse is collected, the charge to the subscriber goes up.

Subscribers may take "excess" garbage or ashes to the city incinerator or dumping grounds at no extra charge. Non-subscribers must be licensed, at $5 each six months.

600 Slow Payers To Lose Service

Nearly 600 subscribers to Mansfield's garbage-ash service face loss of service beginning Saturday unless they pay delinquent collection bills before then, Secy. Fred E. Lingafelter, of the refuse-water department, said today.

He said that 574 customers owe a total of $689. A total of $8,539 of the city's current $9,228 refuse bill has been collected.

The list of delinquent customers will be given to refuse collectors this week-end and service to them stopped. Lingafelter urged persons with unpaid bills to bring statements with them when making payment or include stub if payment is by mail.

TAPPAN GIVES FUND $160,000

The Tappan Stove company today announced a liberalized free hospitalization for employes, and a $160,000 contribution to the Employes' Profit Sharing and Retirement fund.

The board of directors also voted yesterday a dividend of $1.75 per share, payable Dec. 14 to stockholders on record as of Dec. 7.

"The hospital and surgical plans," a company spokesman said, "were planned and designed so all Tappan employes, regardless of age or seniority, would be eligible to participate in all provisions of the plan."

* * *

Replaces Old Plan.

The new plans replace the former hospital plan, established in 1939, and give employes more liberal benefits, effective Jan. 15. The company will pay the entire cost of both plans for the employe and, in addition, will pay 20 per cent of the cost of all desired family participation, it was announced.

Both hospital and surgical benefits are good anywhere in the United States with an allowance of 31 days per year for any one illness or disease. An employe may use any hospital for any disease or accident except occupational disease or accident in which case benefit is provided by the Ohio Industrial commission.

* * *

Fourth Straight Year.

Deposit of $160,000 into the employes' profit sharing and retirement fund marked the fourth straight year that employes have participated in this plan which is based on the company's net earnings per share before federal taxes on income.

It was announced that this fund, inaugurated in 1943 following approval by the commissioner of internal revenue, provides greater security for the employe and his family upon retirement or in case of death, and provides sick or disability benefits within the limits stated in the plan.

In the four years the plan has been in operation, Tappan employes have received a total of $560,000.

Intricacies of Banking Stump Mansfielder, He Tells Police

Marion L. Burton, 120 North Adams street, isn't really a passer of bad checks—he just didn't understand the intricacies of banking.

But he's a wiser man today. Detectives have informed him of the difference between a savings account and a checking account.

Burton was being sought by detectives yesterday for questioning in connection with the passing of two reportedly bogus checks.

Learning that he was wanted, Burton voluntarily reported to police headquarters. Investigation showed that he had issued not two, but five "bad" checks for a total of $29.73. Three were cashed by Mansfield merchants.

But Burton was positive the checks were good. Still, there were the facts: they had come back from the bank marked "no account."

Detectives finally unraveled the mystery. It seems that the 24-year-old Burton didn't realize that one can't draw checks against a savings account.

He had sufficient money in the savings account, deposited with a Mansfield bank, so, at the suggestion of detectives, Burton transferred the money into a checking account and all the "bad" checks were made good.

COURT UPHOLDS 'NO BABY' BAN

COLUMBUS — (INS) — The state supreme court, in a four to three decision, upheld today the validity of a written agreement which stipulates that no children may live in an apartment.

The court reversed Cleveland municipal and eighth district appellate court decisions and upheld the right of the Lamont Building company of Cleveland to evict Marvin Court, 25-year-old war veteran, and his 23-year-old wife and year old son.

The court held that a landlord may validly stipulate in a written agreement that the occupancy shall be confined to adult persons. When a tenant brings a young child to live in an apartment in violation of such an agreement, the court held he may be evicted.

The opinion was concurred in by Judges Charles Zimmerman, Roy Williams, Edward Matthias, and William Hart. Chief Justice Carl Weygandt and Judges Charles Bell and Edward Turner dissented.

The decision ended a court battle to decide whether it is "socialogically wrong" to evict tenants because of the birth of a child.

The Lamont company contended the courts violated the terms of the agreement because they knew when they signed the "adults-only" leave that a child was about to born to them.

Union's Legal Counsel Hints At Proposal

Judge Postpones Court Session With No Explanation Following Long Conferences With Attorneys.

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Judge T. Alan Goldsborough today deferred imposition of contempt penalties on John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers (AFL) amid indications that Lewis was considering the possibility of calling off the national coal strike.

There was no positive indication that the strike actually would be called off. But it was learned on excellent authority that Lewis' attorneys had asked Goldsborough what the situation would be if the strike were called off this afternoon.

Goldsborough judged Lewis and the union guilty of contempt yesterday for their refusal to obey a temporary court order of Nov. 18 to cancel the walkout of 400,000 soft coal miners. He deferred sentence until 10 a. m. today.

But at 10 a. m. the judge called union and government counsel into his chambers for conferences and at noon he ordered a recess until 3 p. m. EST.

While government and union counsel talked with Goldsborough in the judge's office, the 65-year-old UMW chief strode nervously back and forth in a jury room adjoining the court chamber or conferred with legal aides.

AFL Chief Council Joseph A. Padway was the one who, it was reported, raised the possibility that the mine shutdown might be ended.

He was reported on good authority to have asked Goldsborough what penalties Lewis and the UMW might expect if, belatedly, they obeyed the Nov. 18 restraining order.

* * *

Reply Not Revealed.

Goldsborough's reply was not learned. Presumably, he would solicit the government's recommendations. The government's attitude was not learned either.

Presumably the answer will be forthcoming after court reconvenes at 3 p. m.

Goldsborough had originally deferred sentencing until today to give government and union counsel a chance to advise him as to what they believed the penalties should be.

The prolonged conferences in chambers—and then the recess until 3 o'clock—made it apparent that more than routine matters about the sentencing were being considered.

The government had indicated it would recommend a jail sentence for Lewis and a heavy fine—probably perhaps as much as $200,000 a day until the strike ends—for him and the union.

Goldsborough found the defendants guilty of both civil and criminal contempt for refusing to obey his court order. Under the rules of civil contempt the judge may impose any penalty he considers appropriate.

The prolonged series of discussions in Goldsborough's chambers gave weight to the report that Lewis was exploring the possibility of ordering the miners back to work.

FUEL CRISIS STRANGLES 3 NEARBY COMMUNITIES

Three communities in the Mansfield area today faced industrial curtailment and domestic hardships in the mounting coal crisis, News-Journal state correspondents reported this morning.

Hardest hit was Galion, where 17 industrial plants employing more than 3,000 workers will shut down indefinitely tomorrow in a drastic effort to conserve power.

Bucyrus reported the New York Central railroad yards virtually idle, with 15 locomotives standing cold in the roundhouse. Coal dealers said their stockpiles almost were cleaned out.

In Mt. Vernon, the Cooper-Bessemer corporation cut the work week from six days to five. A domestic coal dealer said he knew of more than 100 homes which "have less than a ton of coal."

* * *

ONLY RELATIVELY BRIGHT spot was Shelby, where the municipal power plant was promised a shipment of enough coal to last 22 days. However, Mayor F. C. Long ordered street lighting cut 50 per cent and asked domestic users to curtail use of electric lights.

Representatives of Galion industries met yesterday with Mayor William Amann. They agreed to the industrial shutdown.

The step was taken, Mayor Amann said, to preserve the city's health by providing enough power to operate the water system, city hospital and garbage disposal plant.

Coal dealers reported not one pound of coal has been shipped to the city since Nov. 20. The municipal power plant uses approximately 50 tons, or one carload, a day.

MILLIONS FACE IDLENESS FROM FREIGHT TIEUP

Embargo Forced By Shortage of Coal Threatens Nation With Economic Crisis.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Here is what the coal shutdown means so far:

Postal—Parcel post packages limited to five pounds weight and 18 inches length beginning at 12:01 a. m. Friday.

Transportation—Movement of all rail freight except food, medicine, fuel and a few other essential items banned after midnight tomorrow; passenger traffic on coal-burning roads cut in half, effective at midnight Sunday; all export freight except food and fuel now embargoed.

Employment—More than a million already idle and industrialists predict additional hundreds of thousands soon will be thrown out of work.

General—Hundreds of schools, churches and industrial plants closed and household consumers expected to be hit within 10 days; dimout regulations effective over a wide area.

PITTSBURGH —(U.P.)— The nation headed rapidly toward an industrial crisis today as a freight embargo, resulting from the 14-day soft coal strike, left scores of factories with only a few days to operate.

More than 1,000,000 workers, 500,000 of them in the automobile industry, faced layoffs next week as a result of the embargo, effective Friday.

The Ford Motor company of Detroit announced it would cease all manufacturing at midnight Thursday. Assemblies will shut down a few days after that. An estimated 85,000 production workers will be laid off.

* * *

EMBARGO HITS CITY INDUSTRY

Mansfield industries faced a new, crippling blow today as freight and express embargoes were ordered effective at midnight tomorrow.

At the same time, the government ordered another 25 per cent cut in passenger service on coal-burning trains, and the post office placed limitations on the size and weight of parcel post shipments.

The freight embargo is expected to curtail production in most Mansfield industries, while the cut in passenger service and parcel post limitation will affect the celebration of Christmas, just three weeks away.

John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce, said the embargo "will hit us very badly" and predicted its effect will be felt "within a few days."

"Our industries here primarily are consumer-goods items, and both the shipment of raw materials and delivery of the finished product to warehouses and wholesalers virtually will be cut off by the embargo," he said.

The principal railroads here have not been notified officially of the embargo, which prohibits shipment via railroad of all but vital necessites.

C. L. Ford, Mansfield postmaster, said he knew "only what he read in the newspapers," but predicted the parcel post limitation would be a hard blow to Christmas shoppers.

"The mails already are swollen by Christmas packages, and a cut in size and weight to packages will create a problem," he said. "My office has been flooded all morning by inquiries from people who have seen the story."

A spokesman for the Tappan Stove company said the embargo may force a shutdown "within two weeks." The company previously had reported an acute shortage of steel, which forced stoppage of all overtime and a cut in the work week from six to five days.

Only bright spot in the picture came from Al Strachan, superintendent of the city's sanitation department, who announced that approximately 50 tons of coal had been allocated to the garbage disposal plant.

The shipment, authorized by the Solid Fuels administration, wipes out a threat of a shutdown at the disposal plant because of the coal shortage.

BULLETIN

OAKLAND, Calif. — (AP) — In the face of a general strike that tied up the city, the Oakland city council today declared a state of emergency and placed full police and fire power in the hands of the mayor.

COOPERATION, KEY TO REHABILITATION—Cooperation, among the veteran, the Veterans Administration, and private enterprise, is illustrated by this pictorial story of Adam Hollinger, 200 Cleveland avenue. Loss of a leg at Cassino during his 54 months' service in the army didn't dull the spirits of Hollinger. Immediately upon his discharge he went to work to catch up on "time lost." The Hughes-Keenan company, cooperating with the Mansfield VA office, offered him an on-the-job training position (picture at right) and company officials now term Hollinger "one of our ablest men." Not satisfied with his practical training, Hollinger spends two or three nights weekly taking related theoretical training at the Mansfield Senior high school where (center) Instructor Dan A. Haber gives him some pointers. Completing the saga of rehabilitation (left), Bill Solomon of the Weidner Motor Sales is shown handing the keys of a new Pontiac to smiling Hollinger as J. C. Fuller of the Mansfield VA office looks on. The car is an extra service for disabled vets and in no way interferes with the company's normal quota of cars for civilians. Said Hollinger, "My experience is proof that with a will and cooperative spirit, rehabilitation is not a problem—it's a cinch."—(News-Journal photos)

Misery loves company—but not when doubling up in an overcrowded house.

Quote: "Anybody could get rich if he could guess the moment at which a piece of junk becomes an antique."

"Too many of us," says Robert W. Chamberlin, a Cleveland worker for good government, "store the duties of citizenship in the closet with the winter coat and take them out for airing only at election time."

Brighter Future For Friendly House

THIS IS Mansfield's chance! The groundwork has been carefully laid for a fine send-off for "Operation Tomorrow." A $235,000 Friendly House is the first project on the list that will eventually bring this city into the forefront of social agency work.

Right now Mansfielders have their chance to demonstrate their confidence in the future of their community.

Contributions are needed from everyone. The city's manufacturers have generously agreed to pay 70 per cent of the cost of the new settlement house. A suitable site has been donated. It is up to others of us to see that the $60,000 which represents the agency's share of the cost is raised this month.

Persons who have examined the plans for the new building and who know the great effort put forth by Director and Mrs. Russell Gimbel and the Friendly House board give praise to the preparation this group has made for their project.

With them it is more than a project. It is virtually a life's dream. They have lived in the hope that some day they could bring real opportunity in wholesome surroundings to more of the children who are in need of such advantages as are offered by Friendly House. That day is almost here. It is up to individual contributors to make the dream come true.

For Mansfielders who wish to take advantage of the "gift deadline," December 15, to lower their income tax assessments, this is the ideal opportunity. If they wish to make contributions in addition to those for Friendly House they can turn them over to the Richland Foundation where they will be earmarked for whatever project the donor desires.

Small Minority Decides For Majority

EXTENT to which an active minority of a few hundred persons can gain control over the destinies of a decisive majority was impressively exemplified earlier this week in the election conducted by Local 711, United Electrical Workers (CIO).

Out of a claimed membership of approximately 5,000 ONLY 608 VOTES WERE CAST! Thus 12 per cent of the membership decided who would have authority over the whole membership during the coming year.

An officer assumed to be the authorized spokesman for the union refused to reveal how many of this 12 per cent voted for the winners. With no figures available, it is apparent, however, that as few as seven per cent of the union's membership could have voted back into power a majority of the leaders who plunged them into the longest and costliest strike in Mansfield industrial history—more than 100 days of idleness . . . coupled with financial distress for many of those deprived of work against their wishes.

Skimpiness of the vote would seem to indicate either that 4,400 of the 5,000 union members were not strongly encouraged to vote, or found it inconvenient to do so at the time the election was held. Or, possibly, their membership in the union is a purely perfunctory matter, made necessary by the treatment customarily accorded non-union workers, despite the constitutional right of individual decision in such matters.

Guard Against Holiday Dangers

APPROACH of Christmas brings the customary warnings against extra fire hazards created by the prevalence of inflammable decorations, garments and toys at this season.

"Accidents", the Ohio Safety Council repeats, "don't just happen—they are caused either by a mechanical failure or a human failure."

Among safety suggestions are: "Use metal tinsel, and hang it on the tree before stringing electric lights, as short circuits may be caused by tinsel coming in contact with live parts of the bulb; check electric cords and replace worn ones; never leave a lighted Christmas tree unguarded, and dispose of the tree and other evergreen decorations before they become very dry."

Two other warnings that appear to need frequent repetition are: "Keep stairways clear", and "Use a sturdy stepladder when hanging holiday decorations."

The holiday season is always marred for some people by a distressing accident—keep in mind that this year it might be YOU . . . unless you and members of your family exercise caution.

Admit Teachers Deserve Higher Pay

THE COUNTRY'S smallest state, Rhode Island, has organized its 4,000 teachers for a $600 salary increase affecting every school system in its 39 towns and cities. This common cause has changed the old-time teacher organization, the Institute of Instruction, from a body that devoted itself to discussions of class room techniques, to one campaigning for this wage increase through appeals to all citizens, state officials and members of the general assembly.

The teachers say only 17 per cent of them make as much as a bus driver; that 50 per cent make less than textile, rubber and leather workers; that standards are so low that only half as many candidates are entering teacher-training colleges as in 1920, whereas many more than that number are required.

Gov. John O. Pastore has endorsed the teachers' effort for pay raises, and it looks as if most of the people of his state agree with him.

One observer of trends inclines to pessimism. He says: "It is evident by this time that our civilization will ultimately destroy itself for lack of parking space."

Jack Warwick inquires: "Whatever happened to Utopia? At one time a political party thought it was on the way there."

It is said that a Jap with an abacus can beat the speed of an adding machine—but no substitution is likely in this country.

With the introduction of vitamins into chewing gum a wave of new slogans may be expected at any moment.

Big Pipelines Can Be Converted To Natural Gas Within 15 Days

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — The Truman administration's dilly-dallying over conversion of the Big Inch and Little Inch pipelines to natural gas is exactly like Herbert Hoover's handling of the bonus army. It all boils down to the problem of looking ahead (some people call it statesmanship).

When veterans began straggling into Washington in the summer of 1932, Hoover did nothing about them. Soon he woke up to find about 20,000 veterans literally camped on the nation's doorstep, finally had to resort to bayonets, tanks and Gen. Douglas MacArthur to run them out of town.

When Roosevelt came along later, veterans still continued to enter Washington. However, Roosevelt handled them as a day-to-day problem, didn't let them accumulate. Each day they were taken down to Fort Hunt, Va., just south of the capital, then helped to get back to their homes or places where jobs were available.

Likewise with the government's pipelines. Four years ago, when they were first built, it was well known that John L. Lewis was worried over the possibility that they might be converted to natural gas after the war. This column reported the fact at the time.

Repeatedly since the end of the war this column has pointed to the fact that cheap natural gas brought to the east in the now idle pipelines is one important answer to the annual danger of having John L. Lewis shut the coal industry down on a shivering nation.

However, more than a year has dragged by with nothing happening. Today, the pipelines could be converted to natural gas in about 15 days, provided the gas was hooked into one of the private pipelines supplying Ohio and the Detroit area. To get clearance of the right of way through Pennsylvania would take longer. But no clearances are necessary to supply Ohio and Michigan.

This quick emergency hook-up would supply only 50,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily. Had the Truman administration looked ahead and exercised a little statesmanship, a permanent hook-up for gas—which takes much longer—could be in operation by this time and would pump 300,000,000 cubic feet daily into the industrial areas of the east.

Note—Assistant Secretary of War Stuart Symington, when War Surplus administrator, sent a report to congress recommending that the pipelines be used first for oil or, as a second alternative, for gas. But, most important of all, he urged that the pipelines be used—not lie idle.

Picketing J. L. Lewis.

Here is a letter from an organizer of the United Mine Workers regarding the poor wage scale paid by John L. Lewis to his own union workers. For obvious reasons, the writer of the letter, who works for Lewis' District 50, must remain anonymous. He writes:

"It is of great interest to see John L. Lewis again make wage demands of the operators, when the irony is that he does not believe in handing out increases to his own employes. The organizers of District 50 have not received an increase, in most cases since 1942.

"They have received $208 per month and $5 a day for expenses. In fact, they have been cut. They used to get parking and tolls, but now that has been removed from them. Yet without flinching his eyebrows, Lewis asks for wage increases from employers, forgetting that he, himself, is an employer.

"There is absolutely no seniority in District 50. The organization certainly needs a union more than the workers in the plants to protect them from John L. Lewis. If anything goes wrong or a mistake is made, you get bawled out or fired without any recourse whatsoever.

"We in the locals introduced resolutions at the convention in Atlantic City, and what happened? The officers pigeon-holed them. Someday members of District 50 will have to resort to picketing."

Porter's Black Market.

Shortly before he resigned as OPAdministrator, battered Paul Porter still had sufficient sense of humor to tell this story on himself:

Shortly before President Truman announced the end of all controls on meat, Porter was taking a few days vacation on the ranch of a friend in Texas. One day he accompanied the ranch foreman to watch a nearby cattle auction.

The prices the steers were bringing were so high that Porter knew the meat never could be sold at ceiling prices without terrific loss. Dressed in ranch clothes and unknown to the crowd, he asked a nearby rancher how any profit could be made on this beef if it were to be sold at ceiling prices.

"What do you mean, ceiling prices, stranger?" the rancher asked.

"Why, the OPA maximum prices," Porter replied.

Ohio's Best Vote-Getter.

Ohio politicoes point to an interesting but little advertised development in the Buckeye state. While it was Senator-elect Bricker who captured the headlines, it was Ohio's Congressman-at-Large George Bender who led the ticket with the greatest number of votes.

Unlike Taft and Bricker, both definitely aligned with the conservative wing of their party, Bender is a liberal Republican—too liberal for many diehard conservatives in the party. As a result, Bricker tried last summer to seize from Bender the chairmanship of the Cuyahoga county (Cleveland) Republican organization. However, Cleveland Republicans stepped in and gave Bricker one of the worst trimmings of his career. They stood by Bender. Later Bender had a chance to show what he could do.

In 1944, he had led his ticket with a majority of 190,000 for congressman-at-large, while Taft squeaked through his senate contest with only 14,000 votes to spare. And in the recent November elections, Bender did about the same thing to Bricker.

Though Bricker was considered certain to lead the GOP ticket in Ohio, when the votes were counted Bender had a majority of 406,000 to Bricker's majority of only 321,000. Governor-elect Thomas Herbert, another Republican, won out by only 38,000.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, Dec. 4, 1926.

Substitution of a municipal court for mayor's court was recommended by City Solicitor Robert W. Stephenson in address at meeting of Amima club, held at Elks grill.

Auto club members were buying their license plates early and were taking advantage of newly adopted insurance plan.

Negotiations were in progress between city officials and OPS for 10-year renewal of street lighting contract.

Edwin G. Slough went to Sidney to deliver Elks memorial address.

Mrs. Rudolph Fox, 67, died at her home, 157 South Main street.

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Bryant Todd, 12 Sherman avenue.

Auto belonging to H. P. Bowers of Bellville was stolen from parking place on North Park street.

Dave Boone Says:

JUDGE GOLDSBOROUGH'S opinions so far in the Lewis case make so much sense and are so crystal clear that I'm afraid they won't stand much chance when the higher court gets a look at 'em.

* * *

It's almost illegal for a lower court to be so logical and understandable to the average mind.

* * *

Cal Coolidge was away ahead of Judge Goldsborough when he said "Nobody has the right to strike against the government anywhere, any time." But it's been almost unconstitutional for anybody to hold an old-fashioned, simple American opinion like that for nearly a quarter of a century.

* * *

Cal didn't add that a strike wasn't a strike provided it was big enough to cripple an entire nation and make life tougher for every man, woman and child, and provide a field day for high-priced lawyers. He sure was a queer duck.

Screening College Students.

In spite of the fact that American colleges and universities are overflowing with enrollments far beyond any previous records, there are legions of other anxious and promising young people, including some veterans, who are being denied admittance for no other reason than that there is no room for them—anywhere.

So, in one sense, each student is granted a greater privilege than ever before. For, outside the gates, is some youth, just as ambitious and possibly just as intelligent, who covets the student's good fortune.

This imposes a new responsibility on the students to make the most of precious opportunity and to repay society with the fruits of his training. And it imposes greater responsibility on the institutions to extend their limited privileges first to those young people from whose education society, rather than individuals stands to profit most.—Milwaukee Journal.

Assignment: America

—By KENNETH L. DIXON

Miners Are "People"; Don't All Think Alike.

WASHINGTON—Perhaps it is not within the province of a reporter to make an appeal to the reading public. If it is not, then I am getting out of line.

For this is an appeal to the average American to cease speaking of the coal miner as though he belonged to a nationality, a creed or a race apart.

It is written after two weeks of walking the coal patches of America . . .! Talking with the handloaders, the motormen and the miners in various other jobs . . . of talking with their wives and their children . . . of talking with their teachers and their preachers and their saloon-keepers.

At the end of that time, I have come back to Washington and have heard in swelling chorus the same phrase that seemed to follow me everywhere I went—even to the edge of the coal patches of Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

It was the phrase "the miners."

People say, "the miners ought to do this," or "the miners are wrong about that," or else they ask, "how do the miners feel about such-and-such a question?"

And they seem to think that there is a completely co-ordinated point of view, peculiar to coal miners, which sets them apart as an individual group and makes it impossible for them to think or act contrary to the consensus of that group.

And all of it has a faintly familiar ring . . .

During the years that I spent overseas, by letters and by cables I received requests to report "what the soldiers think about this," or the "GI attitude about that," and so on.

It was not until the war was nearly over that people at home—and some abroad—gradually began to realize that the GI had his own views as an individual, just as he had had before he donned olive drab.

Then they understood that no one could honestly and accurately generalize about the so-called "GI point of view."

A few phonies tried to do it, thus delaying the eventful realization of the truth on the part of millions of home folks . . .

Just as the GI's were ordinary humans, with ordinary and individual reactions to each specific problem, so are the soft coal miners. Many of them revere John L. Lewis. Many of them detest him. Many of them think this shutdown is justified. Many of them think it is almost criminal.

To say that they are all the same because they are following the lead of Lewis today is as wrong as it would be to say that a man who voted against Tom Connally is a Democrat if he merely admits that Connally is a senator and important in foreign relations.

See what I mean? In other words, plenty of miners have no use for Lewis today but, since he still seems to be the majority's choice as a union leader, they concede that point and stick with him—just as the nation as a whole sticks by popular or unpopular leaders.

A lot of people I know who normally make a great to-do about racial and religious "tolerance"—and I hate that word because it implies something to be tolerated—seem to have forgotten their own sermons when it comes to the soft coal miners.

They talk loudly about this fight between Lewis and the government, involving a "basic and fundamental principle." Yet, not so long ago, they were willing to train and send forth their young men to flout another basic Biblical principle—"thou shalt not kill"—because they felt that the threat to their civilization justified it.

It could be that there are coal miners today who feel that the threat to their civilized existence justifies this basic fight.

The aforementioned people today damn the miners as a class because they follow Lewis even when they may not like his leadership. Yet, those same critics, during the recent unpleasantness, followed the late President Roosevelt right down the line—even though they had called him "warmonger" and fought him viciously and bitterly right up to the day that war was declared.

Do you see what I mean? It isn't a matter of whether John L. Lewis is right or wrong. It's a matter of whether the average coal miner should be accorded the same rights and respect given your next-door neighbor—even if he follows Lewis.

Just like your next-door neighbor, he still is an ordinary, hard-working, budget-worrying individual—although he may vote the opposite ticket, straight!

Effort Seen to Soften Anti-Trust Policies.

WASHINGTON—In the chameleon-like transformation of the Truman administration from the one-time Roosevelt progressivism to something of the more sober hue, there are interesting behind-the-scenes developments other than the campaign against Wilson Wyatt and his housing program described here previously.

Another significant undercover operation is aimed at softening the anti-trust policy of the justice department.

That division is charged with checking monopoly to protect honest business and small business in the competitive struggle which is the essence of our free enterprise system.

As real estate and building interests are piqued by Mr. Wyatt, so are other big business and financial interests disturbed by Wendell Berge, chief of the anti-trust division, who has continued to go about his job fearlessly, courageously and intelligently. His head has been in danger before.

Now new pressures are being exerted to ease him out.

It is deplorable. It is especially discouraging with the increased concentration of industry due to the war and the danger of monopoly that this has caused. A close watch is more necessary now than ever.

Agencies such as the anti-trust division and the numerous independent commissions set up to protect the public interest are only as effective as the men who direct them and the mettle of their assistants.

Molotov Proposal Being Closely Examined.

WASHINGTON — One thing must be said for Russian strategy in the United Nations poker game —it is always unexpected. When Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov agreed to accept the principle of international inspection to insure disarmament and control of atomic energy he took everyone by surprise.

The Molotov proposal is now being subjected to the closest study by the experts in all delegations to determine whether it means what it actually seems to mean.

Suspicion is so deep and the stakes are so great that nothing is taken for granted.

The experts who know Russia had said that the Soviets would never accept inspection. They based this on the belief that inspection by foreigners authorized to go anywhere at any time would be a challenge to the supremacy of the state and therefore contrary to the supremacy of the secret police, the NKVD, who dominate so many aspects of Russian life.

That is one reason why the Molotov proposal, for two inspection commissions, is being so closely examined. Those who know the Soviet system from first-hand experience find it hard to believe that the Russians will really accept inspection with all that it means.

Nevertheless, by their acceptance in principle they have put themselves in a strong position. What this new move has done is to crystallize once again opinion on the issue of the veto.

Molotov had said that the inspection commissions would set up within the framework the United Nations security co... cil. Presumably, therefore, ... work of the inspectors would ... subject to the big power veto ... as the acts of the security cou... are subject to veto.

Farmer's Diary: "Modern, But Minimum."

"I GOT my wife a 'lectric cook stove," chuckled the old farmer. "She'd been awantin' one for some time past, and happened I was in the hardware store when a shipment come in. They'd just unpacked one that had all the others beat, and I up and bought it."

"The big old wood range that'd been there since all the kids were little, seemed good enough fer me, but you know how women are! My wife's stuck to me for forty years, and the next forty oughta be made easier fer her. Beside she was havin' the Ladies' Aid pretty soon, and women like to show off something new to the neighbors . . . not that it matters to me, but you know how women are!

"I wish you'd seen her face when the truck backed up to the door and the men unloaded it. She was as excited as the time the old mare had twins. She had it set right in where we fixed the wiring for it, when the REA came along—it made the one end of the kitchen look like TODAY and the other like YESTERDAY.

"Didya ever see that big old range of ours? It's got a nickel trim and a warming closet and a reservoir that holds ten gallons, copper lined. Many's the time I've seen her take six loaves o' bread out o' the oven at once—and many's the new lamb or the chick or the little pig we've warmed in it. It's a fine place to warm yer feet, too, fer it holds the heat so well. I always liked to set there and watch her get me breakfast, of mornin's . . . after a man gets up in his stocking feet and kindles all the fires, it'll do to set and watch the bacon sizzle and smell the coffee readyin' to boil. She liked to have me, too. You know how women are.

"First morning after the new stove was there, she tried makin' waffles . . . pancakes, you might say, contoured and listered to hold the syrup . . . I told her I'd take mine plain, by preference, but not to hurt her feelin's I et plenty.

"Every mornin' it was something new. The cook book full of recipes come with it—only to me it didn't taste like her cookin' always did before, and I was kindo' glad when a big storm smashed a pole somewhere do... the line, and there wasn't a current for three days so's I co... go to puttin' my feet in the ov... and watchin' the mush fry in t... big iron skillet on top o' the ... range.

Pegler Fair Enough

NEW YORK—Life, the pictorial magazine, recently presented an article purporting to be a review of the Communist movement, or conspiracy, in the United States by an expert.

The author was Arthur M. Schlesinger, jr.

The New York Herald Tribune selected Schlesinger to review a book called "The Plotters" by a man known by many names, including Arthur A. Derounian, Avedis Boghos Derounian and John Roy Carlson. Mr. Schlesinger thought well of the book itself and regarded the author as a sincere authority. In this latter particular he disagreed with Federal Judge John P. Barnes, of Chicago, who said from the bench, after a trial of the evidence, that Carlson was "a wholly irresponsible person who was willing to say anything for money," and added, "I wouldn't believe him on oath, now or at any time hereafter."

Of Carlson's chapter on the American Communist party, Schlesinger wrote that it was "not so complete as his picture of the Facists, largely because the efficiently organized Communist party is harder to penetrate by Carlson's methods."

The meaning of that remark plainly is that the Communist conspiracy is more dangerous because it is less easily unmasked. Nevertheless, Carlson and, I gather, Schlesinger, too, regard "Fascism" as the greater menace.

The reader with a free mind has a right to suspect that Carlson had undisclosed reasons for presenting an incomplete picture of the Communist conspiracy.

AN OUTSIDER certainly would have, as Schlesinger writes, great difficulty penetrating the Communists' iron curtain in American politics and unionism. But a person sympathetic with most, or all, of its aims might be loath to reveal it fully and might try to dismiss it as a secondary or unimportant threat. "But the chapter," on Communism, "shows amply that Carlson's awareness of the proto-Fascist use of Red-baiting as a means of smearing anyone to the left of General Franco does not suspend his conviction that liberals must nail down Communist activity wherever it is clear and probable," Schlesinger continued. I should prefer plainer Americanese, but these double-dome types do use an ideological geechee and we have to use their own wordage or they may say we distorted it. "Proto-Fascist" is their way of saying "pro-Fascist" or even "Fascist." William S. Gailmor, the sniveling thief who lectures along the party line, once explained that he found the device "Fascist-minded" to be useful, as it would be pretty hard to prove what was or wasn't in a victim's mind.

Canvassing Schlesinger's statements and assumptions, we find here that he does not accuse all anti-Communists of "smearing anyone to the left of General Franco." But there are many Americans in "the plotters" far to the left of General Franco who nevertheless indulge in "Red-baiting." I have done it for years, even when "Red-baiting" was regarded as undignified if not dirty pool. Why should the Reds enjoy exclusive immunity from "baiting?" And, moreover, there are those who regard all opposition to Communism as "red-baiting." Notwithstanding his "expose" in life, which I thought deficient in important matters for reasons which I am at liberty to surmise, I think Schlesinger could have gone much further in "life" without exposing himself to any reasonable charge of "red-baiting."

Othman On Anything

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—John L. Lewis looked like a Buddha in a gray vest one size too tight. The lawyers argued and the judge made pointed remarks, but John L's. expression never changed.

His gaze settled on the bright red dress of a radio girl in the courtroom and there it stayed. Nothing moved but the fingers of his right hand, fishing in his upper vest pocket.

These pudgy digits extracted finally a fat and pale perfecto banded in gold. Lewis held this masterpiece of the cigar-maker's art under his flared nostrils and sniffed its aroma. He must have been breathing, but no quiver came from any of his 240 pounds.

His lawyers were objecting to everything. The judge rocked comfortably in his red leather swivel chair and observed that the government's suggested findings of fact and law seemed about right to him.

The lawyer wondered if this meant the judge intended to find Lewis guilty of contempt. The judge said "yes." Then, said the lawyer, his client had a statement.

Ponderously the Buddha, who had not spoken in court in a week, got to his feet. From the inner pocket of his wrinkled, double-breasted coat he extracted a speech typed on onion-skin paper. He began in a low voice to read it. It was a trembly voice, charged with emotion, but with the words well-spaced.

I do not want to do John L. an injustice. It is not for me in a case like this to say that he was acting, but I'd bet my last remaining scoop of coal that this was a speech he'd rehearsed before a mirror. I can remember only one other orator who played upon an equally magnificent set of vocal cords as if they were a cathedral organ, making them roar and in the next breath sending them into an ear-cupping pianissimo. That was the late John Barrymore, reciting Hamlet's soliloquy in an otherwise forgotten movie.

About the only difference was that Barrymore wept when the camera stopped grinding.

* * *

WHAT LEWIS actually had to say about the sordid history of injunctions, the brutal work of the miners underground, and the deprivation of their constitutional rights you may read verbatim elsewhere. Nearly 50 of the best reporters in the business took down his every word, but it is impossible for reporters to convey on paper the bitterness and the almost-but-not-quite tone of sarcasm of the mighty organ when it boomed.

"Your injunction, sir, I respectfully submit, deprives the unions of their constitutional rights."

How can a reporter get across the idea that the intonation of that word, "respectfully," somehow seemed not quite that? Who is to say Lewis wasn't speaking respectfully? Maybe he can't help it when his inflections seem to belie his words. And, of course, maybe my ears are no good.

Anyway Lewis finished his speech with a bellow. He folded his manuscript and placed it in his pocket. He removed his eyeglasses. He resumed his chair.

The brows, which seem to frame his eyes in unbrushed fur, turned in the direction of the red spot on the second bench. The judge ordered John L. back for sentencing today, but if the Buddha was listening there was no visible sign.

DON'T LET FIRE RUIN HOLIDAYS, STEELE URGES

Chief Points Out Danger in Home-Installed Heaters.

With three disastrous fires occurring in Ohio within the week to prove his point, Fire Chief L. J. Steele today warned that "this is the fire season" and said that "it can be the busiest in history."

Steele said the shortage of heating equipment and housing may cause a sharp increase in the number of winter fires. ...

Because of the housng shortage many people are installing their own heating and cooking units in order to make space for several families in a single-family house.

"This is dangerous," he said, adding that the city's worst fire tragedy this year from a personal injury standpojnt was caused by a gas stove which was improperly installed—by the owner.

He urged persons to have qualified plumbers or tinsmiths install heating or cooking units. He said that special caution should be taken in the installation of oil-burning stoves.

* * *

Blames Shortage.

The shortage of heating equipment is resulting in persons not being able to have their furnaces adequately serviced before they are put in use, the chief said.

He urged that they be inspected carefully and that, when possible, worn-out equipment be replaced. "In any event they should be properly cleaned," he said.

Another special fire hazard this year will be worn-out Christmas tree lights, the chief said. Persons haven't been able to buy new sets for years and the ones now in use can be dangerous unless properly insulated and wired, he said.

The chief also cautioned against these normal winter fire hazards:

1. Rubbish in furnace rooms.
2. Using gasoline or kerosene to start fires.
3. Burning spark-making materials, such as old, dry wood, which could ignite wood shingles.

As a final warning he again emphasized a long-standing "DON'T"! "Don't permit small children to play with matches; keep them out of their reach."

ESCAPERS FACE JURY'S INQUIRY

Four Mansfield reformatory escapers today faced a special grand jury investigation after they made a futile attempt yesterday to escape from the Fairfield county jail in Lancaster.

A special jury session was called for next Tuesday after one of the group, Leland R. Earlenbaugh, 26, of Akron, injured Sheriff Harley Highley yesterday with a five-inch chunk of concrete torn from his cell.

A subsequent search disclosed the prisoners had cached several pieces of iron, a sharpened mop handle, a paring knife and a can opener.

The four youths, with a 17-year-old girl companion, terrorized northcentral Ohio several weeks ago when they escaped from the Grafton honor camp and abducted and robbed three men, including two Richland county residents, and stole two automobiles. They were captured in Millersburg 48 hours after their escape.

Keep God's Spirit Alive, Pastor Urges

America's supreme task is to keep the spirit of God alive, Rev. Norman R. Somerville, pastor of the First Methodist church of Galion, last night told Co-operative club members and guests.

Describing a visit made last summer to the shrine of Father Divine, Somerville said, "This religious cult, a banquet of which we were privileged to observe, is exhibit 'A' of a tendency toward paganism in America."

R. Earl Brandenberg was program chairman of the dinner held in the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Marked Dollar Bill Provides Clue In Bellville Burglaries

Residents in Mansfield and Richland county today were urged by the sheriff's department to be alert for a one-dollar bill defaced with the indelibly stamped words "Handle With Care."

Deputies said it is a valuable clue in the burglary of the high school and grade school buildings at Bellville last night when some $70 was stolen from a desk in the high school office.

"If anyone receives the bill and can remember from whom it is received it will aid us in the search for the burglars," deputies said. The stamped words are on the back of the bill, it was said.

The burglary was discovered this morning when the buildings were opened for classes. Entrance was gained through broken windows. Most of the missing money is in nickels, dimes and quarters. Also missing from the high school is a quart of milk. Nothing appeared ot be taken from the grade school, officers said.

Yule Lights Will Be Ready If Strike Ends

The coal strike may have dimmed the pre-holiday lights, but the Retail Merchants association still hopes it can turn on the festive decorations now hung in Central park.

In case you've wondered why workers continue to erect the Christmas decorations, with its thousands of colored lights, in the park, V. H. Lodde, secretary-manager of the association, has the answer.

"We feel that since so much of the work already had been done, the job might just as well be completed for people to enjoy during the daylight hours and then if the brown-out order is rescinded, we'd be ready to go," he explained.

Lodde said the decorations consist of approximately 4,000 red and green lights connected by 8,000 to 10,000 feet of electric cord, and 1,500 yards of perishable laurel leaves.

Still to be erected around the fountain is a large laurel bell containing white lights.

Injured were Howard W. Richardson, 30, Attleboro, Mass.; his wife, Jean, 25, and Samuel J. Marvicsin, 28, of 412 Sherman avenue. They were treated for lacerations and bruises. Mrs. Richardson, who suffered face lacerations, shock, and contusions, is in General hospital.

Patrolmen said Marvicsin was towing a car which had no tail light and Richardson's car crashed into the rear of the towed vehicle. The cars were headed east.

Marvicsin was fined $10 and costs in municipal court today on a charge of towing a car without lights.

STATE SETS UP MEET ON PLANS FOR ROUTE 13

Long deferred action on obtaining a new first class highway around Mansfield's new airport is to be discussed by county and state officials and interested representatives of the public at a meeting in the courthouse Dec. 12, it was announced today.

County Engineer Walter E. Rusk said Perry T. Ford, state director of highways, called him this morning to arrange for the meeting.

"The director asked that an open caucus be held on the subject. All persons interested in the project are invited," Rusk said.

State Route 13 was officially abandoned by the highway department in 1944 when the airport was constructed. In its place the county has built and maintained an earth-surface road (County Road 13-A) that is winding and hilly and has been called unsatisfactory for the heavy traffic entering Mansfield from the north.

One of the strongest supporters of a proposed new highway to replace the old State Route 13 has been the Richland County Auto club. It has reported numerous complaints from trucking companies and residents to the north of the city.

Several months ago the county engineer's office began preparation of surveys for two proposed routes around the port, one to the west and one to the east. The eastern route may also include a subway under the tracks of the Erie railroad to provide for a connecting link with State Route 545 entering the city from the northeast.

State highway department officials in the past had said that the state could not commit itself to construction of the highway until county commissioners made the surveys and provided a right-of-way. The surveys have been completed for several weeks, but land for the right-of-way must still be obtained.

Although no official action is expected to be taken at the Dec. 12 meeting, potentialities of the project may be cleared up, Rusk said.

YOUTHS ASKED TO JOIN NAVY

Mansfield high school seniors and graduates were reminded today that there are only 45 days left in which they may apply for enrollment in the navy's new college training programs.

Chief J. T. Daley, in charge of the Mansfield naval recruiting station, said Dec. 17 is the deadline for applications to take the nation-wide competitive examinations on Jan. 18, 1947, to enter the Naval Examination Section, Princeton, N. J. Mansfield is one of the cities in which the examinations will be given.

This new program offers a four-year college education at navy expense plus a commission in the navy or marine corps upon graduation. Detailed information for men between 17 and 21 years of age is available at the navy recruiting station or from the principal at Mansfield Senior high school, Daley said.

A social followed showing of the film. Bill Leicy's orchestra played for dancing. Refreshments were served.

Harold Schaffer of Delaware, membership director of Ohio, supervised showing of the movie.

Up and Down The Street

Christmas season might be said to have "officially" entered Mansfield at 9:45 p. m. last night. At least that's how a lover of the traditional Christmas tree expressed it. For at that time there was seen to enter the center of the darkened city a truck loaded down with evergreens which soon will be sparkling with decorations and candy peppermint sticks. This was the first load of trees observed and on top of it, according to this observer anyway, old Saint Nick could almost be seen smiling jovially.

* * *

GOOD START—

Mansfield had the promise of improved sidewalks today. City council last night authorized a survey of all the city's crumbling walks. Two street department crewmen are to do the job. When the survey is completed council's street committee will take some action to have walks repaired. Councilman Fred Miller, committee chairman, said he has had numerous complaints concerning the walks and urged repairs as soon as possible.

* * *

WON'T BE LONG—

Of course Mansfielders have been doing their Christmas shopping for several weeks, but the yule season isn't "officially" here until the Christmas trees begin to appear. A truckload of evergreens which passed through the downtown area last night probably stirred the imagination of all the youngsters who saw it. Despite the darkened business district due to the coal strike, the boys and girls could see brightly lighted trees in their homes with all the gifts that go with them.

NEED FOR MAIN ROUTE TO BIG CENTERS CITED

Brief to Be Filed With Federal Agency Protests Limited North-South Feeder Line.

The city of Mansfield today forwarded to the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington a brief taking exception to the CAB's previous recommendation that Mansfield be authorized only a north-south airline service.

The brief, prepared jointly by the city and the Chamber of Commerce, declared that "Mansfield's community of interest is primarily east and west" and termed "naive" the CAB examiner's previous recommendation.

* * *

Approves Brief.

Signed by City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner it was approved at a meeting yesterday attended by Mayor Roy W. Vaughn, Service-Safety Director William W. Enlow, Wagner, John G. Routzon, the chamber's secretary-manager, C. H. Henkel, Mansfield attorney, and Alan P. Tappan, president of the Tappan Stove company and aviation enthusiast.

Trans-World Airlines and United Airlines both have applied to the CAB for east-west service through Mansfield. Previously, the board had recommended only a Cleveland-to-Columbus feeder service.

The brief forwarded to the CAB will be considered by the board and an oral hearing will be held in Washington within a month or two. A board ruling probably will not be issued until next spring, and service, if approved, is not likely to be started at municipal airport until next summer.

* * *

Calls Plan 'Naive.'

The brief declared "it is naive to believe that the primary needs of the citizens of Mansfield will be satisfied with a feeder service which makes it necessary for the traveler to go north or south before he can go east or west, as would be required under the examiners' recommendation.

"We believe the public interest would be better served by authorizing a trunk-line carrier to serve relatively small cities where the need is shown."

It pointed out that hotel registration figures indicate "a strong community of interest" with large cities both to the east and west, and cited the large industries here, such as Westinghouse and Tappan Stove, which have branch factories or offices in eastern cities.

"Mansfield has no objection to being included in the board's plans for the development of a secondary air pattern," the brief stated. "This community does object, however, to its inclusion in such development if such inclusion means denial of the more important and needed trunk-line service."

The city concluded its argument by pointing out a trunk-line service is "absolutely imperative" and that "all the evidence we have submitted supports this contention and in addition we have a $2,000,000 airport, including modern lighting facilities, ready to go."

X-RAY ADDITION GETS APPROVAL

Approval of a $20,000 addition to General hospital to house an X-ray department was announced yesterday by the Civilian Production administration's Cleveland district office.

Also approved by the CPA was an $8,000 addition to the Brandenburg Chevrolet company, 140 Park avenue east. Approval was granted on the grounds that the addition would be of no impact on veterans' housing.

The new hospital addition will be built in the court space at the hospital adjacent to the present X-ray department. It will be about 24 by 40 feet, large enough to accommodate a new X-ray machine.

Plans for the addition are nearly compete, board members have reported. Previously, the cost of the building was estimated at $17,000.

Data Ready on Navy-Marine Training Plan

Young men interested in obtaining a four-year college education in return for accepting commissions as officers in the navy or Marine corps upon completion of training may obtain complete details at the Mansfield Naval recruiting station, according to Chief J. T. Daley.

The station has received bulletins which explain in detail the requirements and basis for applying for examination to participate in the Navy-Marine college training programs.

Under the 1947 program, Mansfield will be a testing center for those in this area who submit their application blanks to the board of examiners at Princeton, N. J., before the deadline on Dec. 17, Daley said.

Two programs are offered: A naval reserve officers' training corps and a navy aviation college program. Both enable those chosen to attend a college of their choice from among the 52 approved throughout the nation by the navy and to receive payment of all tuition, fees and textbooks, plus a monthly expense allotment.

Application blanks for the examination and descriptive literature are also available at the principal's office at Senior high school.

"UNBLOCK" your DIGESTIVE TRACT

And Stop Dosing Your Stomach With Soda and Alkalizers

Don't expect to get real relief from headache, sour stomach, gas and bad breath by taking soda and other alkalizers if the true cause of your trouble is constipation.

In this case, your real trouble is not in the stomach at all. But in the intestinal tract where 80% of your food is digested. And when the lower part gets blocked food may fail to digest properly.

What you want for real relief is something to "unblock" your lower intestinal tract. Something to clean it out effectively—help Nature get back on her feet.

Get Carter's Pills right now. Take them as directed. They gently and effectively "unblock" your digestive tract. This permits all 6 of Nature's own digestive juices to mix better with your food.

PILES ARE NEVER MILD

DANGER IN NEGLECT

No one should ever think of piles (hemorrhoids as a "mild" disorder.

Although they may seem a "mild" ailment, especially when not giving pain or inconvenience, piles are in fact tumor formations without tendency to heal themselves, instead, they are likely, if neglected, to keep increasing in size, involving more and more of the rectal area.

Even a so-called "mild" case may be expected to undermine one's health, by inviting predisposing to or aggravating other ailments, such as: indigestion, biliousness, stomach trouble, constipation, headaches, pain in the back and down the legs, secondary anemia with its run-down tired feeling and general nervous irritability.

Removal of piles is the only permanent relief — written guarantee. My method produces little or no discomfort, does not require the use of knife or drugs, and seldom is the patient required to lose any time from work or other duties.

Bedtime Stories

—By Thornton W. Burgess

THE WASTEFUL ONE

Prickly Porky is one of the people of the Green Forest who think of little but eating. All he asks is to be let alone with plenty of food. Then he doesn't care if it rains or snows or the sun shines He just spends his time eating and sleeping, not caring a slap of his prickly tail whether or not he has any friends, and sometimes it seems as if he hasn't a friend in the world.

It isn't that his neighbors are afraid of him. They are not. There is nothing to be afraid of as long as they don't get too near him, and they are careful not to do that It is no trouble at all to get out of his way, for he is one of those people who do not like to hurry, and he seldom does. When he does it is a slow sort of hurrying. So his neighbors have no trouble at all in keeping a safe distance, and they are careful never to rub him the wrong way. It would be just too bad to do that—for the one who did it.

"Prickly Porks is the queerest fellow in the Green Forest," Jumper the Hare, who lives there, once told his cousin, Peter Rabbit, who just visits there.

"He has big teeth, as every one knows who has seen him, and he had big, stout claws but he doesn't use either to fight any one who is foolish enough to attack him. Doesn't that seem silly?" said Jumper.

"I've heard he fights with his tail," said Peter.

Jumper nodded. "With his tail and his coat," said he. "Perhaps it isn't quite the truth to say that he fights with his coat, but I guess that any one who tries to grab him and gets his mouth and face filled with the sharp little spears he carries in his coat, and that come out of that so easily but are so hard to pull out of anyone else, would say that he fights with his coat."

"I think," said Peter, "that that coat is the most wonderful thing. I wonder how it seems to know that nobody, or almost nobody, dares to touch you. What a grand feeling that must be! Wouldn't you like to have a coat like that?"

"Not if it was to mean that I couldn't get around any faster than Prickly Porky can I wouldn't trade my long heels for his sharp spears - No, sir, I wouldn't," replied Jumper.

"Nor me," agreed Peter. "Still—well, it would be nice not to be afraid."

"Not at the price of being as slow and stupid as Prickly Porky is," retorted Jumper and there was no doubt all that he meant it. "He's wasteful, too," he added.

Peter thought this over for a minute. "Why do you say that? In what way is he wasteful?" said Peter.

"You and I are big eaters, but we don't spoil a lot we can't eat and so waste it, do we?" said Jumper.

Peter started to say that this was true, but didn't say anything. Perhaps he remembered Farmer Brown's garden and the lettuce plants there that he had spoiled by taking a few bites from each instead of eating just one or two, but probably he didn't think of it at all. Thoughtfulness seldom goes with wastefulness Thoughtful people seldom are wasteful.

"Do you mean that Prickly Porky spoils a lot of good food?" asked Peter.

His big cousin nodded. "He sometimes does in a way. He cuts more than he can eat. Of course that soon gets dry and doesn't do anybody any good. If that isn't waste, what is it?" said he.

Just then something fell between them. For just a moment iet startled them . Then they saw what it was, a small branch from the hemlock tree under which they were sitting. Jumper reached out and began to eat the green leaves. Those small needles of hemlock and pine and spruce are really leaves you know, as truly leaves as those of any other trees.

"So I am wasteful, am I?" said a voice up above them. It was half grunt, half whine.

They looked up. Above them in that tree was Prickly Porky. He was out on a big branch cutting off a small side branch.

The next story: "Was It Waste?"

Last Letter Voices Fear

PEDRO, Cal.—(AP)—A last letter from the skipper of a missing ship, whose papers were found in a drifting lifeboat with two decomposed bodies, indicated today that [illegible] aboard the vessel.

The Costa Rican motorship Pacifica with 15 men aboard had not been heard from since it sailed from Guatemala Nov. 12. Coast guard officers believed it foundered in the violent storms which swept the coast of Lower California in late last month.

The boat containing two bodies [illegible] of three men known to have been aboard the coastal vessel was sighted by the fishing boat Beauty of San Diego and towed to Port Angeles, Mexico, 1,500 miles south of here.

The bodies were too decomposed to be identifiable. One appeared to have been dismembered. One report said one of the bodies was that of a woman.

The letter listed the names of Capt. Reginald G. MacLean, 53, San Pedro master of the Pacifica, Alejandro Sibilla, 23, Costa Rican [illegible] Ralph MacClean, and Luis E. Benavides Rodriques, 21, Colombian [illegible].

RURAL OHIOANS WIN POSTS AS HOUSE LEADERS

Republican Caucus Ignores Urban Legislators.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Republican members-elect have chosen rural county leaders for the GOP's 123 legislators in the 139-seat Ohio house of representatives which convenes Jan. 6.

In caucus yesterday, the Republican assemblymen ignored urban legislators and selected C. William O'Neil, 30-year-old Marietta lawyer, as speaker; Paul L. McCormick, Huntsville (Logan county) real estate dealer, speaker pro tem; and Leslie M. Burge, Lorain roofing contractor, party whip.

Clerk Carl Guess of Carrollton was re-elected by acclamation.

O'Neill, perhaps the youngest legislator ever selected speaker, defeated Clifton L. Caryl of Union county, 91 to 25. O'Neill came to the legislature when he was 22 years old and still an Ohio State university student. He was discharged from the army last February as a staff sergeant with overseas service in the engineers.

4 Ballots Required.

Four ballots were required to decide the speaker pro tem. McCormick, who at 47 will be starting his fifth consecutive term, won over Rep. William M. Deddens of Cincinnati, a former speaker pro tem, John L. Catlett, Mansfield navy veteran, and Robert R. Shaw of Columbus, present speaker pro tem.

On the first ballot McCormick received 36 votes, Deddens 36, Catlett 30 and Shaw 13. On the next tally McCormick got 47 votes, Deddens 40, Catlett 27 and Shaw 1. On the third ballot, with Shaw eliminated, McCormick had 54 supporters, Deddens 46 and Catlett 15. And on the final, McCormick received 64 votes and Deddens 50.

COURT DELAY RAISES COAL PEACE HOPES

action expected some time today was a government petition for an injunction to replace the temporary order of Nov. 18.

Meanwhile, the question was raised at the White House as to whether President Truman, in view of the coal crisis, would make a radio address to the nation.

Some persons have uregd him to make an appeal directly to the miners to return to work.

White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, asked if such a broadcast were "in prospect," replied, "I have no comment on that."

Whatever the sentence imposed on Lewis and the UMW, it appeared likely tht the supreme court itself would ultimately decide the fundamental question of whether the government has a right to issue injunctions in labor disputes.

Lewis faced a possible jail sentence and fine for his contempt of court conviction, and there were indications the government soon would open another court fight to punish him further under the Smith-Connally anti-strike law.

Chinese Forces Await Signal For Civil War

SHANGHAI—(UP)—Just five years after Pearl Harbor China's Nationalist armies today have been drawn up in battle array and deployed for all-out warfare against the Chinese Communists the moment the signal to attack is given.

The preparation for war which many here — both Chinese and Americans — believe virtually inevitable, have been carried out on an extensive scale.

Peace Appeals Fading.

Nationalist troops have been moved into Manchuria and massed along the outer defenses of the Communist stronghold of Yenan. Top-level Nationalist commanders have conferred on strategy and tactics and the bristling statements of the militarists are drowning out appeals to the Communists to make peace and join in the disputed national assembly.

The signal for war may come from the Communists. If, as seems fairly certain, the Communists declare that a "national split" exists the fight probably will be on.

At the moment the initiative appears to rest with the Communist leader, Chou En-Lai, who is back in Yenan, pondering whether further talks are possible on any basis and whether the government cease-fire order and offer of seats in the national assembly finally will be rejected.

Despite Communist claims the most reliable information indicates that no actual concentrated attack has been launched by the Nationalists. However, the Nationalists are edging in in hopes of striking a quick, crushing blow. Reactionary Nationalists believe that if Yenan can be smashed the blow to Communist prestige would be fatal.

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Misery loves company—but not when doubling up in an overcrowded house.

Quote: "Anybody could get rich if he could guess the moment at which a piece of junk becomes an antique."

"Too many of us," says Robert W. Chamberlin, a Cleveland worker for good government, "store the duties of citizenship in the closet with the winter coat and take them out for airing only at election time."

Brighter Future For Friendly House

THIS IS Mansfield's chance! The groundwork has been carefully laid for a fine send-off for "Operation Tomorrow." A $235,000 Friendly House is the first project on the list that will eventually bring this city into the forefront of social agency work.

Right now Mansfielders have their chance to demonstrate their confidence in the future of their community.

Contributions are needed from everyone. The city's manufacturers have generously agreed to pay 70 per cent of the cost of the new settlement house. A suitable site has been donated. It is up to others of us to see that the $60,000 which represents the agency's share of the cost is raised this month.

Persons who have examined the plans for the new building and who know the great effort put forth by Director and Mrs. Russell Gimbel and the Friendly House board give praise to the preparation this group has made for their project.

With them it is more than a project. It is virtually a life's dream. They have lived in the hope that some day they could bring real opportunity in wholesome surroundings to more of the children who are in need of such advantages as are offered by Friendly House. That day is almost here. It is up to individual contributors to make the dream come true.

For Mansfielders who wish to take advantage of the "gift deadline," December 15, to lower their income tax assessments, this is the ideal opportunity. If they wish to make contributions in addition to those for Friendly House they can turn them over to the Richland Foundation where they will be earmarked for whatever project the donor desires.

Small Minority Decides For Majority

EXTENT to which an active minority of a few hundred persons can gain control over the destinies of a decisive majority was impressively exemplified earlier this week in the election conducted by Local 711, United Electrical Workers (CIO).

Out of a claimed membership of approximately 5,000 ONLY 608 VOTES WERE CAST! Thus 12 per cent of the membership decided who would have authority over the whole membership during the coming year.

An officer assumed to be the authorized spokesman for the union refused to reveal how many of this 12 per cent voted for the winners. With no figures available, it is apparent, however, that as few as seven per cent of the union's membership could have voted back into power a majority of the leaders who plunged them into the longest and costliest strike in Mansfield industrial history—more than 100 days of idleness . . . coupled with financial distress for many of those deprived of work against their wishes.

Skimpiness of the vote would seem to indicate either that 4,400 of the 5,000 union members were not strongly encouraged to vote, or found it inconvenient to do so at the time the election was held. Or, possibly, their membership in the union is a purely perfunctory matter, made necessary by the treatment customarily accorded non-union workers, despite the constitutional right of individual decision in such matters.

Guard Against Holiday Dangers

APPROACH of Christmas brings the customary warnings against extra fire hazards created by the prevalence of inflammable decorations, garments and toys at this season.

"Accidents", the Ohio Safety Council repeats, "don't just happen—they are caused either by a mechanical failure or a human failure."

Among safety suggestions are: "Use metal tinsel, and hang it on the tree before stringing electric lights, as short circuits may be caused by tinsel coming in contact with live parts of the bulb; check electric cords and replace worn ones; never leave a lighted Christmas tree unguarded, and dispose of the tree and other evergreen decorations before they become very dry."

Two other warnings that appear to need frequent repetition are: "Keep stairways clear", and "Use a sturdy stepladder when hanging holiday decorations."

The holiday season is always marred for some people by a distressing accident—keep in mind that this year it might be YOU . . . unless you and members of your family exercise caution.

Admit Teachers Deserve Higher Pay

THE COUNTRY'S smallest state, Rhode Island, has organized its 4,000 teachers for a $600 salary increase affecting every school system in its 39 towns and cities. This common cause has changed the old-time teacher organization, the Institute of Instruction, from a body that devoted itself to discussions of class room techniques, to one campaigning for this wage increase through appeals to all citizens, state officials and members of the general assembly.

The teachers say only 17 per cent of them make as much as a bus driver; that 50 per cent make less than textile, rubber and leather workers; that standards are so low that only half as many candidates are entering teacher-training colleges as in 1920, whereas many more than that number are required.

Gov. John O. Pastore has endorsed the teachers' effort for pay raises, and it looks as if most of the people of his state agree with him.

One observer of trends inclines to pessimism. He says: "It is evident by this time that our civilization will ultimately destroy itself for lack of parking space."

Jack Warwick inquires: "Whatever happened to Utopia? At one time a political party thought it was on the way there."

It is said that a Jap with an abacus can beat the speed of an adding machine—but no substitution is likely in this country.

With the introduction of vitamins into chewing gum a wave of new slogans may be expected at any moment.

Big Pipelines Can Be Converted To Natural Gas Within 15 Days

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — The Truman administration's dilly-dallying over conversion of the Big Inch and Little Inch pipelines to natural gas is exactly like Herbert Hoover's handling of the bonus army. It all boils down to the problem of looking ahead (some people call it statesmanship).

When veterans began straggling into Washington in the summer of 1932, Hoover did nothing about them. Soon he woke up to find about 20,000 veterans literally camped on the nation's doorstep, finally had to resort to bayonets, tanks and Gen. Douglas MacArthur to run them out of town.

When Roosevelt came along later, veterans still continued to enter Washington. However, Roosevelt handled them as a day-to-day problem, didn't let them accumulate. Each day they were taken down to Fort Hunt, Va., just south of the capital, then helped to get back to their homes or places where jobs were available.

Likewise with the government's pipelines. Four years ago, when they were first built, it was well known that John L. Lewis was worried over the possibility that they might be converted to natural gas after the war. This column reported the fact at the time.

Repeatedly since the end of the war this column has pointed to the fact that cheap natural gas brought to the east in the now idle pipelines is one important answer to the annual danger of having John L. Lewis shut the coal industry down on a shivering nation.

However, more than a year has dragged by with nothing happening. Today, the pipelines could be converted to natural gas in about 15 days, provided the gas was hooked into one of the private pipelines supplying Ohio and the Detroit area. To get clearance of the right of way through Pennsylvania would take longer. But no clearances are necessary to supply Ohio and Michigan.

This quick emergency hook-up would supply only 50,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily. Had the Truman administration looked ahead and exercised a little statesmanship, a permanent hook-up for gas—which takes much longer—could be in operation by this time and would pump 300,000,000 cubic feet daily into the industrial areas of the east.

Note — Assistant Secretary of War Stuart Symington, when War Surplus administrator, sent a report to congress recommending that the pipelines be used first for oil or, as a second alternative, for gas. But, most important of all, he urged that the pipelines be used—not lie idle.

Picketing J. L. Lewis.

Here is a letter from an organizer of the United Mine Workers regarding the poor wage scale paid by John L. Lewis to his own union workers. For obvious reasons, the writer of the letter, who works for Lewis' District 50, must remain anonymous. He writes:

"It is of great interest to see John L. Lewis again make wage demands of the operators, when the irony is that he does not believe in handing out increases to his own employes. The organizers of District 50 have not received an increase, in most cases since 1942.

"They have received $208 per month and $5 a day for expenses. In fact, they have been cut. They used to get parking and tolls, but now that has been removed from them. Yet without flinching his eyebrows, Lewis asks for wage increases from employers, forgetting that he, himself, is an employer.

"There is absolutely no seniority in District 50. The organization certainly needs a union more than the workers in the plants to protect them from John L. Lewis. If anything goes wrong or a mistake is made, you get bawled out or fired without any recourse whatsoever.

"We in the locals introduced resolutions at the convention in Atlantic City, and what happened? The officers pigeon-holed them. Someday members of District 50 will have to resort to picketing."

Porter's Black Market.

Shortly before he resigned as OPAdministrator, battered Paul Porter still had sufficient sense of humor to tell this story on himself:

Shortly before President Truman announced the end of all controls on meat, Porter was taking a few days vacation on the ranch of a friend in Texas. One day he accompanied the ranch foreman to watch a nearby cattle auction.

The prices the steers were bringing were so high that Porter knew the meat never could be sold at ceiling prices without terrific loss. Dressed in ranch clothes and unknown to the crowd, he asked a nearby rancher how any profit could be made on this beef if it were to be sold at ceiling prices.

"What do you mean, ceiling prices, stranger?" the rancher asked.

"Why, the OPA maximum prices," Porter replied.

"Oh, the OPA," chuckled the rancher. "Well, you see, we never put the OPA in force down here."

Ohio's Best Vote-Getter.

Ohio politicoes point to an interesting but little advertised development in the Buckeye state. While it was Senator-elect Bricker who captured the headlines, it was Ohio's Congressman-at-Large George Bender who led the ticket with the greatest number of votes.

Unlike Taft and Bricker, both definitely aligned with the conservative wing of their party, Bender is a liberal Republican—too liberal for many diehard conservatives in the party. As a result, Bricker tried last summer to seize from Bender the chairmanship of the Cuyahoga county (Cleveland) Republican organization. However, Cleveland Republicans stepped in and gave Bricker one of the worst trimmings of his career. They stood by Bender. Later Bender had a chance to show what he could do.

In 1944, he had led his ticket with a majority of 190,000 for congressman-at-large, while Taft squeaked through his senate contest with only 14,000 votes to spare. And in the recent November elections, Bender did about the same thing to Bricker.

Though Bricker was considered certain to lead the GOP ticket in Ohio, when the votes were counted Bender had a majority of 406,000 to Bricker's majority of only 321,000. Governor-elect Thomas Herbert, another Republican, won out by only 38,000.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, Dec. 4, 1926.

Substitution of a municipal court for mayor's court was recommended by City Solicitor Robert W. Stephenson in address at meeting of Amima club, held at Elks grill.

Auto club members were buying their license plates early and were taking advantage of newly adopted insurance plan.

Negotiations were in progress between city officials and OPS for 10-year renewal of street lighting contract.

Edwin G. Slough went to Sidney to deliver Elks memorial address.

Mrs. Rudolph Fox, 67, died at her home, 157 South Main street.

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Bryant Todd, 12 Sherman avenue.

Auto belonging to H. P. Bowers of Bellville was stolen from parking place on North Park street.

Dave Boone Says:

JUDGE GOLDSBOROUGH'S opinions so far in the Lewis case make so much sense and are so crystal clear that I'm afraid they won't stand much chance when the higher court gets a look at 'em.

* * *

It's almost illegal for a lower court to be so logical and understandable to the average mind.

* * *

Cal Coolidge was away ahead of Judge Goldsborough when he said "Nobody has the right to strike against the government anywhere, any time." But it's been almost unconstitutional for anybody to hold an old-fashioned, simple American opinion like that for nearly a quarter of a century.

* * *

Cal didn't add that a strike wasn't a strike provided it was big enough to cripple an entire nation and make life tougher for every man, woman and child, and provide a field day for high-priced lawyers. He sure was a queer duck.

One Man's Opinion

—By WALTER KIERNAN

JIMMY PETRILLO said "thank heaven for the federal courts!" But forgot to add, "this endorsement does not necessarily reflect the views of any other AFL leader on trial."

* * *

But Jimmy is the first man in show business who could advertise in the trade papers, "At liberty . . . and glad of it."

* * *

With people in show business "at liberty" means "out of work" . . . with Jimmy it means that he can lead the band in "White Christmas" this year and not "The Prisoner's Song."

* * *

Jimmy was tried under a law popularly known as "the Anti-Petrillo Act," but somewhere between congress and court it fermented and came out "pro."

Screening College Students.

In spite of the fact that American colleges and universities are overflowing with enrollments far beyond any previous records, there are legions of other anxious and promising young people, including some veterans, who are being denied admittance for no other reason than that there is no room for them—anywhere.

So, in one sense, each student is granted a greater privilege than ever before. For, outside the gates, is some youth, just as ambitious and possibly just as intelligent, who covets the student's good fortune.

This imposes a new responsibility on the students to make the most of precious opportunity and to repay society with the fruits of his training. And it imposes greater responsibility on the institutions to extend their limited privileges first to those young people from whose education society, rather than individuals stands to profit most.—Milwaukee Journal.

Assignment: America

—By KENNETH L. DIXON

Miners Are "People"; Don't All Think Alike.

WASHINGTON—Perhaps it is not within the province of a reporter to make an appeal to the reading public. If it is not, then I am getting out of line.

For this is an appeal to the average American to cease speaking of the coal miner as though he belonged to a nationality, a creed or a race apart.

It is written after two weeks of walking the coal patches of America . . .! Talking with the hand-loaders, the motormen and the miners in various other jobs . . . of talking with their wives and their children . . . of talking with their teachers and their preachers and their saloon-keepers.

At the end of that time, I have come back to Washington and have heard in swelling chorus the same phrase that seemed to follow me everywhere I went—even to the edge of the coal patches of Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

It was the phrase "the miners."

People say, "the miners ought to do this," or "the miners are wrong about that," or else they ask, "how do the miners feel about such-and-such a question?"

And they seem to think that there is a completely co-ordinated point of view, peculiar to coal miners, which sets them apart as an individual group and makes it impossible for them to think or act contrary to the consensus of that group.

And all of it has a faintly familiar ring . . .

During the years that I spent overseas, by letters and by cables I received requests to report "what the soldiers think about this," or the "GI attitude about that," and so on.

It was not until the war was nearly over that people at home—and some abroad—gradually began to realize that the GI had his own views as an individual, just as he had had before he donned olive drab.

Then they understood that no one could honestly and accurately generalize about the so-called "GI point of view."

A few phonies tried to do it, thus delaying the eventful realization of the truth on the part of millions of home folks . . .

Just as the GI's were ordinary humans, with ordinary and individual reactions to each specific problem, so are the soft coal miners. Many of them revere John L. Lewis. Many of them detest him. Many of them think this shutdown is justified. Many of them think it is almost criminal.

To say that they are all the same because they are following the lead of Lewis today is as wrong as it would be to say that a man who voted against Tom Connally is a Democrat if he merely admits that Connally is a senator and important in foreign relations.

See what I mean? In other words, plenty of miners have no use for Lewis today but, since he still seems to be the majority's choice as a union leader, they concede that point and stick with him—just as the nation as a whole sticks by popular or unpopular leaders.

A lot of people I know who normally make a great to-do about racial and religious "tolerance"—and I hate that word because it implies something to be tolerated—seem to have forgotten their own sermons when it comes to the soft coal miners.

They talk loudly about this fight between Lewis and the government, involving a "basic and fundamental principle." Yet, not so long ago, they were willing to train and send forth their young men to flout another basic Biblical principle—"thou shalt not kill"—because they felt that the threat to their civilization justified it.

It could be that there are coal miners today who feel that the threat to their civilized existence justifies this basic fight.

The aforementioned people today damn the miners as a class because they follow Lewis even when they may not like his leadership. Yet, those same critics, during the recent unpleasantness, followed the late President Roosevelt right down the line—even though they had called him "warmonger" and fought him viciously and bitterly right up to the day that war was declared.

Do you see what I mean? It isn't a matter of whether John L. Lewis is right or wrong. It's a matter of whether the average coal miner should be accorded the same rights and respect given your next-door neighbor—even if he follows Lewis.

Just like your next-door neighbor, he still is an ordinary, hard-working, budget-worrying individual—although he may vote the opposite ticket, straight!

Effort Seen to Soften Anti-Trust Policies.

WASHINGTON—In the chameleon-like transformation of the Truman administration from the one-time Roosevelt progressivism to something of the more sober hue, there are interesting behind-the-scenes developments other than the campaign against Wilson Wyatt and his housing program described here previously.

Another significant undercover operation is aimed at softening the anti-trust policy of the justice department.

That division is charged with checking monopoly to protect honest business and small business in the competitive struggle which is the essence of our free enterprise system.

As real estate and building interests are piqued by Mr. Wyatt, so are other big business and financial interests disturbed by Wendell Berge, chief of the anti-trust division, who has continued to go about his job fearlessly, courageously and intelligently. His head has been in danger before.

Now new pressures are being exerted to ease him out.

It is deplorable. It is especially discouraging with the increased concentration of industry due to the war and the danger of monopoly that this has caused. A close watch is more necessary now than ever.

Agencies such as the anti-trust division and the numerous independent commissions set up to protect the public interest are only as effective as the men who direct them and the mettle of their assistants.

This was shown clearly in the long "business-as-usual" holiday of Republican regimes of the '20s when agencies set up by the previous Wilson administration became almost moribund because of the way they were stacked at the top with men willing to take the easy path and not be too curious.

Likewise, the anti-trust division was well-behaved in those days. With the advent of the New Deal it sprang into life under Thurman Arnold who struck here and there at monopolies that were throttling business and costing the consumer, including labor-union practices.

Wendell Berge has carried on in the Arnold tradition, though with a limited staff and facilities. He, like Mr. Arnold, has stepped on some powerful toes, including those of railroads and big corporations. In one notable case they recommended that an independent steel industry, free of Wall Street and eastern monopolistic entanglements, be established with the plants built during the war by the government or with government aid.

Attorney General Tom Clark overruled the findings and recommendations of the report and approved sale of the Geneva plant in Utah to United States Steel, thus extending the eastern steel influence to the west.

That seemed to give a clue to topside policy.

Nor is the anti-trust picture too bright in the new congress. Numerous bills are pending to free various segments of our economy from anti-trust statutes.

Progressive forces which will organize to resist these incursions would lose a valuable champion if Mr. Berge were squeezed out.

Molotov Proposal Being Closely Examined.

WASHINGTON — One thing must be said for Russian strategy in the United Nations poker game—it is always unexpected. When Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov agreed to accept the principle of international inspection to insure disarmament and control of atomic energy he took everyone by surprise.

The Molotov proposal is now being subjected to the closest study by the experts in all delegations to determine whether it means what it actually seems to mean.

Suspicion is so deep and the stakes are so great that nothing is taken for granted.

The experts who know Russia had said that the Soviets would never accept inspection. They based this on the belief that inspection by foreigners authorized to go anywhere at any time would be a challenge to the supremacy of the state and therefore contrary to the supremacy of the secret police, the NKVD, who dominate so many aspects of Russian life.

That is one reason why the Molotov proposal, for two inspection commissions, is being so closely examined. Those who know the Soviet system from first-hand experience find it hard to believe that the Russians will really accept inspection with all that it means.

Nevertheless, by their acceptance in principle they have put themselves in a strong position. What this new move has done is to crystallize once again opinion on the issue of the veto.

Molotov had said that the two inspection commissions would be set up within the framework of the United Nations security council. Presumably, therefore, the work of the inspectors would be subject to the big power veto just as the acts of the security council are subject to veto.

This was the question that the British promptly raised through Sir Hartley Shawcross. Sir Hartley used strong language. He spoke of the Molotov "scheme" as "a fraud, a delusion and a snare."

But that is too hasty a judgment. The Russian proposal should be fully explored before it is rejected out of hand. Since it seems to go such a long way, it should be taken as something to build on.

It gets down to a question of the reality of the veto in this connection. Any nation that proposed to veto the work of an inspection commission, once it was set up, would thereby almost automatically plead guilty to a violation, or an intended violation, of the rules the commission was trying to enforce. It would be equivalent to declaring an armament race or even to a declaration of war.

All the time that the public debate goes on, the scientists and technologists are at work in the laboratories of the world. There is a kind of compulsion which drives them on to ever new discoveries. The value of the hands in the United Nations poker game are subject to sudden and unexpected changes.

Farmer's Diary: "Modern, But Minimum."

"I GOT my wife a 'lectric cook stove," chuckled the old farmer. "She'd been awantin' one for some time past, and happened I was in the hardware store when a shipment come in. They'd just unpacked one that had all the others beat, and I up and bought it."

"The big old wood range that'd been there since all the kids were little, seemed good enough fer me, but you know how women are! My wife's stuck to me for forty years, and the next forty oughta be made easier fer her. Beside she was havin' the Ladies' Aid pretty soon, and women like to show off something new to the neighbors . . . not that it matters to me, but you know how women are!

"I wish you'd seen her face when the truck backed up to the door and the men unloaded it. She was as excited as the time the old mare had twins. She had it set right in where we fixed the wiring for it, when the REA came along—it made the one end of the kitchen look like TODAY and the other like YESTERDAY.

"Didya ever see that big old range of ours? It's got a nickel trim and a warming closet and a reservoir that holds ten gallons, copper lined. Many's the time I've seen her take six loaves o' bread out o' the oven at once—and many's the new lamb or the chick or the little pig we've warmed in it. It's a fine place to warm yer feet, too, fer it holds the heat so well. I always liked to set there and watch her get me breakfast, of mornin's . . . after a man gets up in his stocking feet and kindles all the fires, it'll do to set and watch the bacon sizzle and smell the coffee readyin' to boil. She liked to have me, too. You know how women are.

"First morning after the new stove was there, she tried makin' waffles . . . pancakes, you might say, contoured and listered to hold the syrup . . . I told her I'd take mine plain, by preference, but not to hurt her feelin's I et plenty.

"Every mornin' it was something new. The cook book full of recipes come with it—only to me it didn't taste like her cookin' always did before, and I was kindo' glad when a big storm smashed a pole somewhere down the line, and there wasn't any current for three days so's I could go to puttin' my feet in the oven and watchin' the mush fry in the big iron skillet on top o' the old range.

"No—we never got around to taking down the old stove. A body has to be prepared for lambin' time and for times when the 'lectricity may go off. Besides, she says herself, the old oven makes the bread taste more like home, and there's no use using current more'n we need to. Our 'lectric bills are always within the limit . . . I mean the minimum."

UNRRA Council Prepares to Begin Closing Books of History's Biggest Relief Agency

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—A meeting of the 48-nation UNRRA council here next Tuesday will mark the official beginning of the liquidation of the largest relief effort the world has ever known.

It also will mark another chapter in the career of Florello H. LaGuardia. The fiery little ex-mayor of New York City has directed UNRRA since last April after taking over from its original chief, Herbert H. Lehman.

In addition to making preparations for closing its books, the UNRRA council will try to find some answer to two of the most pressing problems remaining from the destruction and dislocation of war. They are::

1. What to do about the dozen or so destitute nations facing malnutrition, if not actual hunger, this winter.

2. What can and should be done about the thousands of refugees still huddled in European displaced persons camps waiting for something to be done.

LaGuardia is dissatisfied in both instances. He wants relief continued on an international basis at least another year. He also is said to be dissatisfied with what has been done about refugees to date.

He can be expected to lead a strong drive for some action on both problems despite the fact that the United States has made it plain that it prefers to handle relief on an individual basis from now on.

Job Gigantic.

Regardless of what UNRRA can do about these problems, it already has done a gigantic job since the end of the war in Europe and the Pacific.

When its last shipment clears sometime next summer, UNRRA will have shipped to needy nations more than 22,000,000 gross long tons of food, clothing, textiles, farm and industrial machinery and vital medical supplies.

The total value of these supplies is estimated at $3,680,913,804. This was contributed by the uninvaded Allied nations—72 per cent by the U. S.

Nearly all supplies have been shipped since V-E Day. UNRRA will stop buying for Europe on Dec. 31 and for Asia on March 31. It probably will take until next summer, however, for all the supplies to reach their destination.

The program of aid for China will take longest. Since that program is the largest, totaling about $750,000,000, and since shipments have been held up by port jam, it likely will take until next summer to complete it. Shipments to Europe are expected to taper off about the end of March, if not sooner.

Aside from China, the biggest recipients of UNRRA aid have been Czechoslovakia, Greece, Poland, Italy, and Yugoslavia. Up to Oct. 30, UNRRA relief shipments in tons were as follows:

To Albania 93,600; Austria 549,600; Russia 112,800; China 1,400,176; Czechoslovakia 1,380,363; Finland 4,200; Dodecanese 24,800; Greece 2,569,000; Hungary 4,600; Italy 7,767,176; Poland 2,031,285; Philippines 16,300; Ukraine 330,500; Yugoslavia 2,169,524; and miscellaneous 111,300.

Food comprised nearly 50 per cent of all UNRRA shipments. Industrial equipment was a close second. Other items in the order of tonnage are farm machinery, clothing and textiles, medical supplies and miscellaneous.

A wonderful incident occurred at the Washington airport in the very last days of World War II. It began when an Iranian air mission flew in for a series of informal discussions about the postwar aviation setup.

The Iranian minister sent a high dignitary to represent his countrymen, of course, and the Air Transport Corps was represented by Major General George. The Iranian mistook the latter for General Marshall and addressed him so three or four times.

Finally, General George decided to set him right. "The name, sir," he said somewhat distantly, 'is George." The Iranian smiled happily, bowed from the waist, and responded, "Please call me Mohammed:"

Do you think steel profits are big?

Recently in a nation-wide poll most people guessed that steel profits were about 20 cents on each dollar of sales. They said 10 cents would be about right.

Actually, for the past ten years steel company profits have averaged less than 5 cents on each dollar of sales.

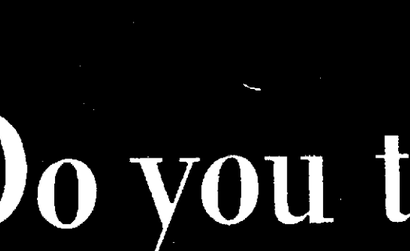
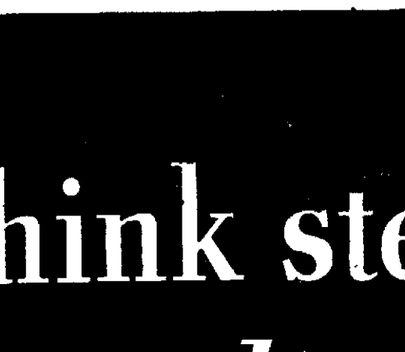
EMPLOYMENT



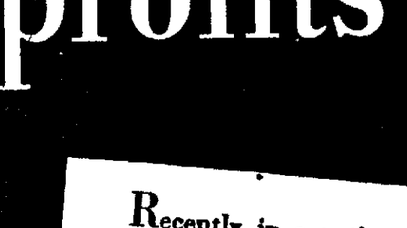
The number of wage earners is not far from the highest in peacetime steel history—20 per cent above the 1929 level.

PRODUCTION



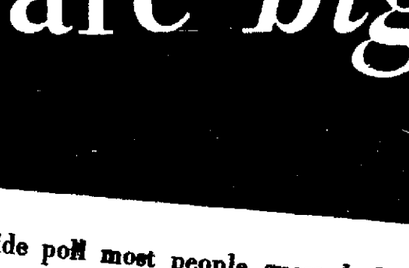
Despite strikes earlier in the year, steel production in 1946 was headed toward a new peacetime record until the November coal strike.

WEEKLY WAGES



Weekly wages in steel industry in the third quarter of 1946 were 63% higher than in 1939.

STEEL COMPANY PROFITS



Average profit per dollar of sales in 1946 is lower than it was in most good prewar years.

Council Acts to Speed Reservoir

Purchase of Last Land for Project Nears Completion

Land-Clearing Bids To Be Accepted Next Week.

Plans for the on-time completion of Mansfield's $1,000,000 Clear Fork reservoir were kept rolling today as the city prepared to purchase some of the last acreage needed and accept bids for a land-clearing contract.

In addition, the city was in a position to bargain for land on which it will locate the project's purification plant and was hoping to complete, by next week, negotiations for virtually the last land required for the reservoir.

Last night city council authorized the purchase from Bertha Nichols of 158 acres of land for $16,500. Next week a special meeting is to be held to bargain for some of the 200 acres owned by R. O. McFarland.

The city's land purchaser, Neil S. Robinson, was authorized to procure sales agreements for 14 acres of land for the purification plant and a road right-of-way to permit relocation of State Route 97. The tract is to be adjacent to the Hershey well site.

To Appropriate Funds.

Next Tuesday, bids are to be accepted on a clearing contract and following the receipt of bids, council is to meet to appropriate funds to cover the contract costs. It tabled such action last night until bids are in and one is deemed acceptable.

City Engineer W. C. Statler urged speed in letting of the land clearing contract, pointing out that the current season is a good one for such work. Swamps, in which much of the clearing will be done, are low now, he said.

The dam for the project is already under construction and is to be completed sometime in August next year. First water is to flow to the city in October, 1948. The project is designed to triple the city's water supply.

Other Actions.

In a two and a half hour meeting during which the need for speed in completing the reservoir often was emphasized, council also appropriated an additional $4,000 for electrical pumping power for the water department.

Service-Safety Director William W. Enlow said the city's "pumpage" is on the up-trend and that "all wells are going at full capacity."

A $410 pump rental fee was set up to enable the continued operation of an emergency well brought into play again last summer. Purchase of a pump for the well is impossible at this time, councilmen said.

In addition, while putting up for sale the city's Longview pumping station property, council retained the water rights on the property as an emergency measure in the event that well had to be brought back into use for the city proper. It is being used for industrial purposes now.

Garbage-Trash Fee Hiked to $13.20 Per Year.

Beginning Feb. 1, it'll cost the average Mansfielder $13.20 a year to have ashes and garbage collected. It now costs $7.20.

After months of study, city council last night approved finally a revised refuse collection ordinance. It sets up a $6 a year ash-rubbish collection fee. Currently there is none.

The new ash-rubbish fee is solely responsible for the nearly 100 per cent boost in refuse collection costs. It is designed to pull that branch of the refuse department out of the red and to improve service.

Residents who burn gas or oil will be charged only $3 a year for rubbish collection service, thus their total yearly bill—for garbage and rubbish combined—will be $10.20.

Persons who have ashes will be charged the $6 a year for ash-rubbish collection.

The garbage collection fee remains at $7.20 for all customers.

* * *

Payable In Advance.

Bills will be payable in advance, semi-annually, and only subscribers to the garbage service will be eligible for ash-rubbish service.

The garbage fee provides for collection of 10 gallons of garbage each week. The $6 rubbish fee provides for the monthly collection of nine bushels (or 300 pounds) of rubbish. If more of either type of refuse is collected, the charge to the subscriber goes up.

Subscribers may take "excess" garbage or ashes to the city incinerator or dumping grounds at no extra charge. Non-subscribers must be licensed, at $5 each six months.

600 Slow Payers To Lose Service

Nearly 600 subscribers to Mansfield's garbage-ash service face loss of service beginning Saturday unless they pay delinquent collection bills before then, Secy. Fred E. Lingafelter, of the refuse-water department, said today.

He said that 574 customers owe a total of $689. A total of $8,539 of the city's current $9,228 refuse bill has been collected.

The list of delinquent customers will be given to refuse collectors this week-end and service to them stopped. Lingafelter urged persons with unpaid bills to bring statements with them when making payment or include stub if payment is by mail.

TAPPAN GIVES FUND $160,000

The Tappan Stove company today announced a liberalized free hospitalization for employes, and a $160,000 contribution to the Employes' Profit Sharing and Retirement fund.

The board of directors also voted yesterday a dividend of $1.75 per share, payable Dec. 14 to stockholders on record as of Dec. 7.

"The hospital and surgical plans," a company spokesman said, "were planned and designed so all Tappan employes, regardless of age or seniority, would be eligible to participate in all provisions of the plan."

* * *

Replaces Old Plan.

The new plans replace the former hospital plan, established in 1939, and give employes more liberal benefits, effective Jan. 15. The company will pay the entire cost of both plans for the employe and, in addition, will pay 20 per cent of the cost of all desired family participation, it was announced.

Both hospital and surgical benefits are good anywhere in the United States with an allowance of 31 days per year for any one illness or disease. An employe may use any hospital for any disease or accident except occupational disease or accident in which case benefit is provided by the Ohio Industrial commission.

* * *

Fourth Straight Year.

Deposit of $166,000 into the employes' profit sharing and retirement fund marked the fourth straight year that employes have participated in this plan which is based on the company's net earnings per share before federal taxes on income.

It was announced that this fund, inaugurated in 1943 following approval by the commissioner of internal revenue, provides greater security for the employe and his family upon retirement or in case of death, and provides sick or disability benefits within the limits stated in the plan.

In the four years the plan has been in operation, Tappan employes have received a total of $560,000.

Intricacies of Banking Stump Mansfielder, He Tells Police

Marion L. Burton, 120 North Adams street, isn't really a passer of bad checks—he just didn't understand the intricacies of banking.

But he's a wiser man today. Detectives have informed him of the difference between a savings account and a checking account.

Burton was being sought by detectives yesterday for questioning in connection with the passing of two reportedly bogus checks.

Learning that he was wanted, Burton voluntarily reported to police headquarters. Investigation showed that he had issued not two, but five "bad" checks for a total of $29.73. Three were cashed by Mansfield merchants.

But Burton was positive the checks were good. Still, there were the facts: they had come back from the bank marked "no account."

Detectives finally unraveled the mystery. It seems that the 24-year-old Burton didn't realize that one can't draw checks against a savings account.

He had sufficient money in the savings account, deposited with a Mansfield bank, so, at the suggestion of detectives, Burton transferred the money into a checking account and all the "bad" checks were made good.

COURT UPHOLDS 'NO BABY' BAN

COLUMBUS —(INS)— The state supreme court, in a four to three decision, upheld today the validity of a written agreement which stipulates that no children may live in an apartment.

The court reversed Cleveland municipal and eighth district appellate court decisions and upheld the right of the Lamont Building company of Cleveland to evict Marvin Court, 25-year-old war veteran, and his 23-year-old wife and year old son.

The court held that a landlord may validly stipulate in a written agreement that the occupancy shall be confined to adult persons. When a tenant brings a young child to live in an apartment in violation of such an agreement, the court held he may be evicted.

The opinion was concurred in by Judges Charles Zimmerman, Roy Williams, Edward Matthias, and William Hart. Chief Justice Carl Weygandt and Judges Charles Bell and Edward Turner dissented.

The decision ended a court battle to decide whether it is "socialogically wrong" to evict tenants because of the birth of a child.

The Lamont company contended the courts violated the terms of the agreement because they knew when they signed the "adults-only" leave that a child was about to born to them.

Union's Legal Counsel Hints At Proposal

Judge Postpones Court Session With No Explanation Following Long Conferences With Attorneys.

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Judge T. Alan Goldsborough today deferred imposition of contempt penalties on John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers (AFL) amid indications that Lewis was considering the possibility of calling off the national coal strike.

There was no positive indication that the strike actually would be called off. But it was learned on excellent authority that Lewis' attorneys had asked Goldsborough what the situation would be if the strike were called off this afternoon.

Goldsborough judged Lewis and the union guilty of contempt yesterday for their refusal to obey a temporary court order of Nov. 18 to cancel the walkout of 400,000 soft coal miners. He deferred sentence until 10 a. m. today.

But at 10 a. m. the judge called union and government counsel into his chambers for conferences and at noon he ordered a recess until 3 p. m. EST.

While government and union counsel talked with Goldsborough in the judge's office, the 65-year-old UMW chief strode nervously back and forth in a jury room adjoining the court chamber or conferred with legal aides.

AFL Chief Council Joseph A. Padway was the one who, it was reported, raised the possibility that the mine shutdown might be ended.

He was reported on good authority to have asked Goldsborough what penalties Lewis and the UMW might expect if, belatedly, they obeyed the Nov. 18 restraining order.

* * *

Reply Not Revealed.

Goldsborough's reply was not learned. Presumably, he would solicit the government's recommendations. The government's attitude was not learned either.

Presumably the answer will be forthcoming after court reconvenes at 3 p. m.

Goldsborough had originally deferred sentencing until today to give government and union counsel a chance to advise him as to what they believed the penalties should be.

The prolonged conferences in chambers—and then the recess until 3 o'clock—made it apparent that more than routine matters about the sentencing were being considered.

The government had indicated it would recommend a jail sentence for Lewis and a heavy fine—probably perhaps as much as $200,000 a day until the strike ends—for him and the union.

Goldsborough found the defendants guilty of both civil and criminal contempt for refusing to obey his court order. Under the rules of civil contempt the judge may impose any penalty he considers appropriate.

The prolonged series of discussions in Goldsborough's chambers gave weight to the report that Lewis was exploring the possibility of ordering the miners back to work.

FUEL CRISIS STRANGLES 3 NEARBY COMMUNITIES

Three communities in the Mansfield area today faced industrial curtailment and domestic hardships in the mounting coal crisis, News-Journal state correspondents reported this morning.

Hardest hit was Galion, where 17 industrial plants employing more than 3,000 workers will shut down indefinitely tomorrow in a drastic effort to conserve power.

Bucyrus reported the New York Central railroad yards virtually idle, with 15 locomotives standing cold in the roundhouse. Coal dealers said their stockpiles almost were cleaned out.

In Mt. Vernon, the Cooper-Bessemer corporation cut the work week from six days to five. A domestic coal dealer said he knew of more than 100 homes which "have less than a ton of coal."

* * *

ONLY RELATIVELY BRIGHT spot was Shelby, where the municipal power plant was promised a shipment of enough coal to last 22 days. However, Mayor F. C. Long ordered street lighting cut 50 per cent and asked domestic users to curtail use of electric lights.

Representatives of Galion industries met yesterday with Mayor William Amann. They agreed to the industrial shutdown.

The step was taken, Mayor Amann said, to preserve the city's health by providing enough power to operate the water system, city hospital and garbage disposal plant.

Coal dealers reported not one pound of coal has been shipped to the city since Nov. 20. The municipal power plant uses approximately 50 tons, or one carload, a day.

MILLIONS FACE IDLENESS FROM FREIGHT TIEUP

Embargo Forced By Shortage of Coal Threatens Nation With Economic Crisis.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Here is what the coal shutdown means so far:

Postal—Parcel post packages limited to five pounds weight and 18 inches length beginning at 12:01 a. m. Friday.

Transportation—Movement of all rail freight except food, medicine, fuel and a few other essential items banned after midnight tomorrow; passenger traffic on coal-burning roads cut in half, effective at midnight Sunday; all export freight except food and fuel now embargoed.

Employment—More than a million already idle and industrialists predict additional hundreds of thousands soon will be thrown out of work.

General—Hundreds of schools, churches and industrial plants closed and household consumers expected to be hit within 10 days; dimout regulations effective over a wide area.

PITTSBURGH —(UP)— The nation headed rapidly toward an industrial crisis today as a freight embargo, resulting from the 14-day soft coal strike, left scores of factories with only a few days to operate.

More than 1,000,000 workers, 500,000 of them in the automobile industry, faced layoffs next week as a result of the embargo, effective Friday.

The Ford Motor company of Detroit announced it would cease all manufacturing at midnight Thursday. Assemblies will shut down a few days after that. An estimated 85,000 production workers will be laid off.

* * *

EMBARGO HITS CITY INDUSTRY

Mansfield industries faced a new, crippling blow today as freight and express embargoes were ordered effective at midnight tomorrow.

At the same time, the government ordered another 25 per cent cut in passenger service on coal-burning trains, and the post office placed limitations on the size and weight of parcel post shipments.

The freight embargo is expected to curtail production in most Mansfield industries, while the cut in passenger service and parcel post limitation will affect the celebration of Christmas, just three weeks away.

John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce, said the embargo "will hit us very badly" and predicted its effect will be felt "within a few days."

"Our industries here primarily are consumer-goods items, and both the shipment of raw materials and delivery of the finished product to warehouses and wholesalers virtually will be cut off by the embargo," he said.

The principal railroads here have not been notified officially of the embargo, which prohibits shipment via railroad of all but vital necessites.

C. L. Ford, Mansfield postmaster, said he knew "only what he read in the newspapers," but predicted the parcel post limitation would be a hard blow to Christmas shoppers.

"The mails already are swollen by Christmas packages, and a cut in size and weight to packages will create a problem," he said. "My office has been flooded all morning by inquiries from people who have seen the story."

A spokesman for the Tappan Stove company said the embargo may force a shutdown "within two weeks." The company previously had reported an acute shortage of steel, which forced stoppage of all overtime and a cut in the work week from six to five days.

Only bright spot in the picture came from Al Strachan, superintendent of the city's sanitation department, who announced that approximately 50 tons of coal had been allocated to the garbage disposal plant.

The shipment, authorized by the Solid Fuels administration, wipes out a threat of a shutdown at the disposal plant because of the coal shortage.

BULLETIN

OAKLAND, Calif. —(AP)— In the face of a general strike that tied up the city, the Oakland city council today declared a state of emergency and placed full police and fire power in the hands of the mayor.

COOPERATION, KEY TO REHABILITATION—Cooperation, among the veteran, the Veterans Administration, and private enterprise, is illustrated by this pictorial story of Adam Hollinger, 200 Cleveland avenue. Loss of a leg at Cassino during his 54 months' service in the army didn't dull the spirits of Hollinger. Immediately upon his discharge he went to work to catch up on "time lost." The Hughes-Keenan company, cooperating with the Mansfield VA office, offered him an on-the-job training position (picture at right) and company officials now term Hollinger "one of our ablest men." Not satisfied with his practical training, Hollinger spends two or three nights weekly taking related theoretical training at the Mansfield Senior high school where (center) Instructor Dan A. Haber gives him some pointers. Completing the saga of rehabilitation (left), Bill Solomon of the Weidner Motor Sales is shown handing the keys of a new Pontiac to smiling Hollinger as J. C. Fuller of the Mansfield VA office looks on. The car is an extra service for disabled vets and in no way interferes with the company's normal quota of cars for civilians. Said Hollinger, "My experience is proof that with a will and cooperative spirit, rehabilitation is not a problem—it's a cinch."—(News-Journal photos)

RURAL OHIOANS WIN POSTS AS HOUSE LEADERS

Republican Caucus Ignores Urban Legislators.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Republican members-elect have chosen rural county leaders for the GOP's 123 legislators in the 139-seat Ohio house of representatives which convenes Jan. 6.

In caucus yesterday, the Republican assemblymen ignored urban legislators and selected C. William O'Neil, 30-year-old Marietta lawyer, as speaker; Paul L. McCormick, Huntsville (Logan county) real estate dealer, speaker pro tem; and Leslie M. Burge, Lorain roofing contractor, party whip.

Clerk Carl Guess of Carrollton was re-elected by acclamation.

O'Neill, perhaps the youngest legislator ever selected speaker, defeated Clifton L. Caryl of Union county, 91 to 25. O'Neill came to the legislature when he was 22 years old and still an Ohio State university student. He was discharged from the army last February as a staff sergeant with overseas service in the engineers.

4 Ballots Required.

Four ballots were required to decide the speaker pro tem. McCormick, who at 47 will be starting his fifth consecutive term, won over Rep. William M. Deddens of Cincinnati, a former speaker pro tem, John L. Catlett, Mansfield navy veteran, and Robert R. Shaw of Columbus, present speaker pro tem.

On the first ballot McCormick received 36 votes, Deddens 36, Catlett 30 and Shaw 13. On the next tally McCormick got 47 votes, Deddens 40, Catlett 27 and Shaw 1. On the third ballot, with Shaw eliminated, McCormick had 54 supporters, Deddens 46 and Catlett 15. And on the final, McCormick received 64 votes and Deddens 50.

COURT DELAY RAISES COAL PEACE HOPES

action expected some time today was a government petition for an injunction to replace the temporary order of Nov. 18.

Meanwhile, the question was raised at the White House as to whether President Truman, in view of the coal crisis, would make a radio address to the nation.

Some persons have uregd him to make an appeal directly to the miners to return to work.

White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, asked if such a broadcast were "in prospect," replied, "I have no comment on that."

Whatever the sentence imposed on Lewis and the UMW, it appeared likely tht the supreme court itself would ultimately decide the fundamental question of whether the government has a right to issue injunctions in labor disputes.

Lewis faced a possible jail sentence and fine for his contempt of court conviction, and there were indications the government soon would open another court fight to punish him further under the Smith-Connally anti-strike law.

Chinese Forces Await Signal For Civil War

SHANGHAI—(UP)—Just five years after Pearl Harbor China's Nationalist armies today have been drawn up in battle array and deployed for all-out warfare against the Chinese Communists the moment the signal to attack is given.

The preparation for war which many here — both Chinese and Americans — believe virtually inevitable, have been carried out on an extensive scale.

Peace Appeals Fading.

Nationalist troops have been moved into Manchuria and massed along the outer defenses of the Communist stronghold of Yenan. Top-level Nationalist commanders have conferred on strategy and tactics and the bristling statements of the militarists are drowning out appeals to the Communists to make peace and join in the disputed national assembly.

The signal for war may come from the Communists. If, as seems fairly certain, the Communists declare that a "national split" exists the fight probably will be on.

At the moment the initiative appears to rest with the Communist leader, Chou En-Lai, who is back in Yenan, pondering whether further talks are possible on any basis and whether the government cease-fire order and offer of seats in the national assembly finally will be rejected.

Despite Communist claims the most reliable information indicates that no actual concentrated attack has been launched by the Nationalists. However, the Nationalists are edging in in hopes of striking a quick, crushing blow. Reactionary Nationalists believe that if Yenan can be smashed the blow to Communist prestige would be fatal.

Unemployed Japs Form New Union

TOKYO —(AP)— Japan's unemployed — or part of them — now have a union.

Representatives of jobless repatriates have set up an organization as yet unnamed and announced today plans to enroll 3,200,000 former soldiers, sailors and civilians returned from abroad. Their platform of 17 demands upon the government includes special issues of food and clothing this winter.

YOUTHS TO ATTEND MEET

WILLARD — Calvin Biettner, Donald Shrader and Gene Smith will attend the boys' conference of the Toledo Presbytery next Friday through Sunday at Perrysburg.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Dale Dunifon, Columbus lawyer and longtime political aide of Governor-Elect Thomas J. Herbert, was honored yesterday with the first appointment to Herbert's 1947-48 cabinet.

Dunifon will be commerce director at $6,500 a year. The governor-elect said he expected to have more appointments to announce later this week after he returns from Peoria, Ill., where he addresses the Association of Commerce tonight. He will fly back to Columbus early Wednesday.

SOCIETY TO MEET

WILLARD—Mrs. E. T. Hicks will be hostess at a meeting of the Women's Missionary society of the Presbyterian church today. Mrs. John McNeal and Mrs. Peter Wiebe will direct the program, and those on the social committee are Mrs. H. A. Nebb, Mrs. J. B. Vail, Mrs. Greer Biettner and Mrs. Harold Ketcheum.

Books for the Younger Set

THE LITTLE ISLAND lived all alone in the ocean. The tides and the birds visited it. Flowers grew on it. Seals came to the island and the birds came. People came and brought a little kitten who wanted to be a little fur island in the sky but he always came back to the ground. He caught a fish and wouldn't let him go until the fish told him the answer to a big question. Then the kitten went away with his secret, left the little island all alone with the storm and snow. Leonard Weisgard has made some very lovely pictures of the LITTLE ISLAND to go with the story by Golden MacDonald.

Once there was a little boy who didn't like to go to school. Edward hoped it would rain too hard for him to go, but it stopped. He hurried to town and stood under a dripping spout until he was very, very wet. Then he went to school, happy because the teacher would send him home to get dry clothes. This is what the teacher did say—"I know your pranks, young man. In the next room you will find some dry clothes which I think will fit you. Put them on!" So EDVARD GREIG, BOY OF THE NORTHLAND had to stay in school when he wanted to be home writing music. Edvard was a genius, one of Norway's greatest composers. Sybil Deucher wrote the book and all you boys and girls who like to read about real people will enjoy it.

Love certainly seems to be laughing at wedlock, to which a cliche, in the case of Artie Shaw and Kathleen Winsor. The housing shortage has added complications to their already complicated honeymoon, so "Amber" and Artie (who occupy separate rooms under one hotel roof to forestall further critical snorts from the West Coast courts) have moved twice since their recent arrival locally, and may move again any minute . . . Gertrude Lawrence is dickering with a movie company—may sign to do a picture at any moment. It would be her first Hollywood stint; her other celluloid ventures occurred in England and Astoria.

Hedy Lamarr's husband, John Loder, took a batch of playscripts back to California for Glamourpuss to read. She'd like to try Broadway after the baby comes.

Barclay On Bridge

UNLESS BRIDGE is going to be a source of grief, instead of happiness, for you, it is well to brace yourself against injustices that can befall you at almost any twist or turn. One of the most depressing of these comes when you know you have bid the hand in the best possible way, from the standpoint of soundness, and arrive at the theoretically best contract, only to be set by a defensive cross-ruff. After the debacle, you learn that incorrect bidding, getting you into a worse contract, would have produced a game.

	♠ Q J 8 5 4 ♥ K Q 7 ♦ A K ♣ K Q 10
♠ K 2 ♥ A 10 6 4 2 ♦ 7 ♣ 8 7 5 4 3	N W E S	♠ 9 6 3 ♥ 8 ♦ 10 9 8 3 2 ♣ A J 9 6
	♠ A 10 7 ♥ J 9 5 3 ♦ Q J 6 5 4 ♣ 2

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1. 2 NT	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	3 NT
2. 1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠

Here is another of those hands which got bid a lot of different ways, including one case of an opening 1-Spade bid by North passed by South. The calling at Table 2 was probably the soundest, as North with his powerful hand made it easy for South to respond on the first round by bidding just 1-Club, then jumping with his spade suit, and later rebidding it to show it was of five cards.

Looking at just the North and South holdings, you would think the side was in a perfect contract, at which only one trick could be lost in spades, one in hearts and one in clubs. But the opponents' "nasty dispositions," or to be more exact, distributions, decided otherwise.

The heart opening, won by the A, was followed by a heart ruff. The diamond 3 was led to the A, and North finessed the spade Q to the K. Now came a second heart ruff, the club A and the diamond 2 ruffed by the spade 2. Counting the three defensive ruffs, North was beaten three tricks. You can't blame him for wanting to chew tacks, when he noted what a cinch it was to make an extra trick at 3-No Trumps, the wrong contract.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, December 4.

Most propitious auguries for advancement, solidification of cherished and long worked for plans and objectives are in line for support and hearty cooperation from those in power and influence, either in employment, business or public place. Such are disposed to give generous reward and approzation for concrete performance, for faithful service and work well done. However, there is sign of secrecy or so-called "double-talk" that might ignite flares of bad temper, rash words or hectic conduct. Maintain calm, balance and keep your "tongue in cheek" for best results.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a year of very definite returns for diligence, responsibility, hard work and sound performance, as well as personal integrity and fidelity, from those in power. These may be generous with tangible rewards, with sincere approbation and encouragement, yet there is a somewhat sincere approbation and encouragement, yet there is a somewhat sinister undercurrent bespeaking treachery, double-dealing or intrigue. Such may flash into the limelight and incite irrational, emotional, reckless and altogether intemperate behavior, unless the calmest and shrewdest attitude be preserved. Great issues for future security and solidarity being at stake, keep firm restraint.

A child born on this day should possess excellent qualities and talents for sound success, rewards of merit and dependability, but is also menaced by rash urges and sinister undertones.

For Thursday, December 5.

A most propitious and encouraging day, for attacking plans and programs of major importance by direct, forthright and aggressive action. A time of highly stimulated energies and faculties, with initiative and fervor for putting over ambitious constructive projects, possibly of fresh purpose or objective. Organize toward this end, work out difficult problems with skill, accuracy and energy. "Strike while the iron is hot" for concrete results and enduring progress.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to find much incentive and stimulus for reaching out toward cherished goals, along fresh and tangible lines, with initiative and enterprise. The prospect of developing constructive and well-organized plans is encouraged by a bold spirit of creative energy along progressive and aggressive patterns, with physical and mental courage and determination under splendid impetus for concrete performance. In this there should be ready support from associates for sound, practical and meritorious projects. Strengthen personal prestige as well, under such constructive vibrations.

A child born on this day is under a constructive rule for enthusiastic, energetic and determined forces and faculties, with a fine "will to win" against all obstacles.

"The Williamson Heater Company:
With my Williamson Furnace I saved from 1 to 1½ tons of coal as compared to winters before with my old furnace. Some of this might be due to the heat control you installed. My home is much more comfortable. I do not fire as often; although this furnace is larger than the old one, still I used less coal."

UNRRA Council Prepares to Begin Closing Books of History's Biggest Relief Agency

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—A meeting of the 48-nation UNRRA council here next Tuesday will mark the official beginning of the liquidation of the largest relief effort the world has ever known.

It also will mark another chapter in the career of Fiorello H. LaGuardia. The fiery little ex-mayor of New York City has directed UNRRA since last April after taking over from its original chief, Herbert H. Lehman.

In addition to making preparations for closing its books, the UNRRA council will try to find some answer to two of the most pressing problems remaining from the destruction and dislocation of war. They are::

1. What to do about the dozen or so destitute nations facing malnutrition, if not actual hunger, this winter.

2. What can and should be done about the thousands of refugees still huddled in European displaced persons camps waiting for something to be done.

LaGuardia is dissatisfied in both instances. He wants relief continued on an international basis at least another year. He also is said to be dissatisfied with what has been done about refugees to date.

He can be expected to lead a strong drive for some action on both problems despite the fact that the United States has made it plain that it prefers to handle relief on an individual basis from now on.

Job Gigantic.

Regardless of what UNRRA can do about these problems, it already has done a gigantic job since the end of the war in Europe and the Pacific.

When its last shipment clears sometime next summer, UNRRA will have shipped to needy nations more than 22,000,000 gross long tons of food, clothing, textiles, farm and industrial machinery and vital medical supplies.

The total value of these supplies is estimated at $3,680,913,804. This was contributed by the uninvaded Allied nations—72 per cent by the U. S.

Nearly all supplies have been shipped since V-E Day. UNRRA will stop buying for Europe on Dec. 31 and for Asia on March 31. It probably will take until next summer, however, for all the supplies to reach their destination.

The program of aid for China will take longest. Since that program is the largest, totaling about $750,000,000, and since shipments have been held up by port jam, it likely will take until next summer to complete it. Shipments to Europe are expected to taper off about the end of March, if not sooner.

Aside from China, the biggest recipients of UNRRA aid have been Czechoslovakia, Greece, Poland, Italy, and Yugoslavia. Up to Oct. 30, UNRRA relief shipments in tons were as follows:

To Albania 93,600; Austria 549,600; Russia 112,800; China 1,400,176; Czechoslovakia 1,380,363; Finland 4,200; Dodecanese 24,800; Greece 2,569,000; Hungary 4,600; Italy 7,767,176; Poland 2,031,285; Philippines 16,300; Ukraine 330,500; Yugoslavia 2,169,524; and miscellaneous 111,300.

Food comprised nearly 50 per cent of all UNRRA shipments. Industrial equipment was a close second. Other items in the order of tonnage are farm machinery, clothing and textiles, medical supplies and miscellaneous.

Try and Stop Me

—By Bennet Cerf

A wonderful incident occurred at the Washington airport in the very last days of World War II. It began when an Iranian air mission flew in for a series of informal discussions about the post-war aviation setup.

The Iranian minister sent a high dignitary to represent his countrymen, of course, and the Air Transport Corps was represented by Major General George. The Iranian mistook the latter for General Marshall and addressed him so three or four times.

Finally, General George decided to set him right. "The name, sir," he said somewhat distantly, 'is George." The Iranian smiled happily, bowed from the waist, and responded, "Please call me Mohammed."

My Uncle Herbert from Vermont took his New York guide book back to the Johnny Appleseed bookshop for credit the day he returned from his visit to the big city. "Things was bustin' loose so fast right thar in the depot," he explained, "that I never did get up to the village!"

A voluptuous blonde threw her full-length ermine wrap over the back of a chair. "I picked this up for a song," she explained. "Really," commented Joan Davis, "it looks more like an overture to me."

POLICE HALT WEIRD BLACK MARKET RING

BUDAPEST—(U.P.)—Police have disclosed that seven persons have been placed under arrest in a weird black market inquiry in which a gang of former German SS men is charged with carrying out a series of organized murders and utilizing the flesh of their victims for sausage which was disposed of in the black market.

Two policemen were said to be among the victims of the gang and two detectives investigating the ring just escaped ambush and a similar fate.

Police said all seven persons arrested admitted their crime. The two policemen were murdered, one of those arrested said, for political motives.

Do you think steel profits are big?

Recently in a nation-wide poll most people guessed that steel profits were about 20 cents on each dollar of sales. They said 10 cents would be about right.

Actually, for the past ten years steel company profits have averaged less than 5 cents on each dollar of sales.

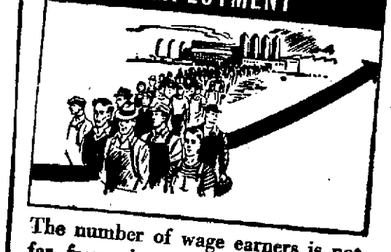
EMPLOYMENT



The number of wage earners is not far from the highest in peacetime steel history—20 per cent above the 1929 level.

PRODUCTION

Despite strikes earlier in the year, steel production in 1946 was headed toward a new peacetime record until the November coal strike.

WEEKLY WAGES

Weekly wages in steel industry in the third quarter of 1946 were 63% higher than in 1939.

STEEL COMPANY PROFITS

Books for the Younger Set

THE LITTLE ISLAND lived all alone in the ocean. The tides and the birds visited it. Flowers grew on it. Seals came to the island and the birds came. People came and brought a little kitten who wanted to be a little fur island in the sky but he always came back to the ground. He caught a fish and wouldn't let him go until the fish told him the answer to a big question. Then the kitten went away with his secret, left the little island all alone with the storm and snow. Leonard Weisgard has made some very lovely pictures of the LITTLE ISLAND to go with the story by Golden MacDonald.

Once there was a little boy who didn't like to go to school. Edward hoped it would rain too hard for him to go, but it stopped. He hurried to town and stood under a dripping spout until he was very, very wet. Then he went to school, happy because the teacher would send him home to get dry clothes. This is what the teacher did say—"I know your pranks, young man. In the next room you will find some dry clothes which I think will fit you. Put them on!" So EDVARD GRIEG, BOY OF THE NORTHLAND had to stay in school when he wanted to be home writing music. Edvard was a genius, one of Norway's greatest composers. Sybil Deucher wrote the book and all you boys and girls who like to read about real people will enjoy it.

Pegler — Fair Enough

NEW YORK—Life, the pictorial magazine, recently presented an article purporting to be a review of the Communist movement, or conspiracy, in the United States by an expert.

The author was Arthur M. Schlesinger, jr.

The New York Herald Tribune selected Schlesinger to review a book called "The Plotters" by a man known by many names, including Arthur A. Derounian, Avedis Boghos Derounian and John Roy Carlson. Mr. Schlesinger thought well of the book itself and regarded the author as a sincere authority. In this latter particular he disagreed with Federal Judge John P. Barnes, of Chicago, who said from the bench, after a trial of the evidence, that Carlson was "a wholly irresponsible person who was willing to say anything for money," and added, "I wouldn't believe him on oath, now or at any time hereafter."

Of Carlson's chapter on the American Communist party, Schlesinger wrote that it was "not so complete as his picture of the Facists, largely because the efficiently organized Communist party is harder to penetrate by Carlson's methods."

The meaning of that remark plainly is that the Communist conspiracy is more dangerous because it is less easily unmasked. Nevertheless, Carlson and, I gather, Schlesinger, too, regard "Fascism" as the greater menace.

The reader with a free mind has a right to suspect that Carlson had undisclosed reasons for presenting an incomplete picture of the Communist conspiracy.

* * *

AN OUTSIDER certainly would have, as Schlesinger writes, great difficulty penetrating the Communists' iron curtain in American politics and unionism. But a person sympathetic with most, or all, of its aims might be loath to reveal it fully and might try to dismiss it as a secondary or unimportant threat. "But the chapter," on Communism, "shows amply that Carlson's awareness of the proto-Fascist use of Red-baiting as a means of smearing anyone to the left of General Franco does not suspend his conviction that liberals must nail down Communist activity wherever it is clear and probable," Schlesinger continued. I should prefer plainer Americanese, but these double-dome types do use an ideological geechee and we have to use their own wordage or they may say we distorted it. "Proto-Fascist" is their way of saying "pro-Fascist" or even "Fascist." William S. Gailmor, the sniveling thief who lectures along the party line, once explained that he found the device "Fascist-minded" to be useful, as it would be pretty hard to prove what was or wasn't in a victim's mind.

Canvassing Schlesinger's statements and assumptions, we find here that he does not accuse all anti-Communists of "smearing anyone to the left of General Franco." But there are many Americans in "the plotters" far to the left of General Franco who nevertheless indulge in "Red-baiting." I have done it for years, even when "Red-baiting" was regarded as undignified if not dirty pool. Why should the Reds enjoy exclusive immunity from "baiting?" And, moreover, there are those who regard all opposition to Communism as "red-baiting." Notwithstanding his "expose" in life, which I thought deficient in important matters for reasons which I am at liberty to surmise, I think Schlesinger could have gone much further in "life" without exposing himself to any reasonable charge of "red-baiting."

Othman — On Anything

WASHINGTON—(UP)—John L. Lewis looked like a Buddha in a gray vest one size too tight. The lawyers argued and the judge made pointed remarks, but John L's. expression never changed.

His gaze settled on the bright red dress of a radio girl in the courtroom and there it stayed. Nothing moved but the fingers of his right hand, fishing in his upper vest pocket.

These pudgy digits extracted finally a fat and pale perfecto banded in gold. Lewis held this masterpiece of the cigar-maker's art under his flared nostrils and sniffed its aroma. He must have been breathing, but no quiver came from any of his 240 pounds.

His lawyers were objecting to everything. The judge rocked comfortably in his red leather swivel chair and observed that the government's suggested findings of fact and law seemed about right to him.

The lawyer wondered if this meant the judge intended to find Lewis guilty of contempt. The judge said "yes." Then, said the lawyer, his client had a statement.

Ponderously the Buddha, who had not spoken in court in a week, got to his feet. From the inner pocket of his wrinkled, double-breasted coat he extracted a speech typed on onion-skin paper. He began in a low voice to read it. It was a trembly voice, charged with emotion, but with the words well-spaced.

I do not want to do John L. an injustice. It is not for me in a case like this to say that he was acting, but I'd bet my last remaining scoop of coal that this was a speech he'd rehearsed before a mirror. I can remember only one other orator who played upon an equally magnificent set of vocal cords as if they were a cathedral organ, making them roar and in the next breath sending them into an ear-cupping pianissimo. That was the late John Barrymore, reciting Hamlet's soliloquy in an otherwise forgotten movie.

About the only difference was that Barrymore wept when the camera stopped grinding.

* * *

WHAT LEWIS actually had to say about the sordid history of injunctions, the brutal work of the miners underground, and the deprivation of their constitutional rights you may read verbatim elsewhere. Nearly 50 of the best reporters in the business took down his every word, but it is impossible for reporters to convey on paper the bitterness and the almost-but-not-quite tone of sarcasm of the mighty organ when it boomed.

"Your injunction, sir, I respectfully submit, deprives the unions of their constitutional rights."

How can a reporter get across the idea that the intonation of that word, "respectfully," somehow seemed not quite that? Who is to say Lewis wasn't speaking respectfully? Maybe he can't help it when his inflections seem to belie his words. And, of course, maybe my ears are no good.

Anyway Lewis finished his speech with a bellow. He folded his manuscript and placed it in his pocket. He removed his eyeglasses. He resumed his chair.

The brows, which seem to frame his eyes in unbrushed fur, turned in the direction of the red spot on the second bench. The judge ordered John L. back for sentencing today, but if the Buddha was listening there was no visible sign.

DON'T LET FIRE RUIN HOLIDAYS, STEELE URGES

Chief Points Out Danger in Home-Installed Heaters.

With three disastrous fires occurring in Ohio within the week to prove his point, Fire Chief L. J. Steele today warned that "this is the fire season" and said that "it can be the busiest in history."

Steele said the shortage of heating equipment and housing may cause a sharp increase in the number of winter fires. . . .

Because of the housng shortage many people are installing their own heating and cooking units in order to make space for several families in a single-family house.

"This is dangerous," he said, adding that the city's worst fire tragedy this year from a personal injury standpojnt was caused by a gas stove which was improperly installed—by the owner.

He urged persons to have qualified plumbers or tinsmiths install heating or cooking units. He said that special caution should be taken in the installation of oil-burning stoves.

* * *

Blames Shortage.

The shortage of heating equipment is resulting in persons not being able to have their furnaces adequately serviced before they are put in use, the chief said.

He urged that they be inspected carefully and that, when possible, worn-out equipment be replaced. "In any event they should be properly cleaned," he said.

Another special fire hazard this year will be worn-out Christmas tree lights, the chief said. Persons haven't been able to buy new sets for years and the ones now in use can be dangerous unless properly insulated and wired, he said.

The chief also cautioned against these normal winter fire hazards:

1. Rubbish in furnace rooms.
2. Using gasoline or kerosene to start fires.
3. Burning spark-making materials, such as old, dry wood, which could ignite wood shingles.

As a final warning he again emphasized a long-standing "DON'T": "Don't permit small children to play with matches; keep them out of their reach."

ESCAPERS FACE JURY'S INQUIRY

Four Mansfield reformatory escapers today faced a special grand jury investigation after they made a futile attempt yesterday to escape from the Fairfield county jail in Lancaster.

A special jury session was called for next Tuesday after one of the group, Leland R. Earlenbaugh, 26, of Akron, injured Sheriff Harley Highley yesterday with a five-inch chunk of concrete torn from his cell.

A subsequent search disclosed the prisoners had cached several pieces of iron, a sharpened mop handle, a paring knife and a can opener.

The four youths, with a 17-year-old girl companion, terrorized northcentral Ohio several weeks ago when they escaped from the Grafton honor camp and abducted and robbed three men, including two Richland county residents, and stole two automobiles. They were captured in Millersburg 48 hours after their escape.

HEASLEY TO HEAD OHIO DRAMA CLINIC

Earl L. Heasley, head of the dramatics and speech department at Senior high school, will serve as chairman of the drama clinic to be held Saturday at Ohio State university under the sponsorship of the National Thespian society.

Heasley will head a panel of three judges who will consider pertinent questions on high school and college speech departments and phases of theatrical productions, submitted by drama and speech instructors throughout Ohio.

The judges will include Leah Funck of Fairmont high school in Dayton; Robert W. Ensley, State Teachers' college, Indiana, Pa., and Florence Powell, speech instructor at Middletown high school. The session will convene at 2 p. m. in Derby hall.

Following the clinic, the University Players will present "Angel Street."

Keep God's Spirit Alive, Pastor Urges

America's supreme task is to keep the spirit of God alive, Rev. Norman R. Somerville, pastor of the First Methodist church of Galion, last night told Co-operative club members and guests.

Describing a visit made last summer to the shrine of Father Divine, Somerville said, "This religious cult, a banquet of which we were privileged to observe, is exhibit 'A' of a tendency toward paganism in America."

R. Earl Brandenberg was program chairman of the dinner held in the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Marked Dollar Bill Provides Clue In Bellville Burglaries

Residents in Mansfield and Richland county today were urged by the sheriff's department to be alert for a one-dollar bill defaced with the indelibly stamped words "Handle With Care."

Deputies said it is a valuable clue in the burglary of the high school and grade school buildings at Bellville last night when some $70 was stolen from a desk in the high school office.

"If anyone receives the bill and can remember from whom it is received it will aid us in the search for the burglars," deputies said. The stamped words are on the back of the bill, it was said.

The burglary was discovered this morning when the buildings were opened for classes. Entrance was gained through broken windows. Most of the missing money is in nickels, dimes and quarters. Also missing from the high school is a quart of milk. Nothing appeared ot be taken from the grade school, officers said.

Yule Lights Will Be Ready If Strike Ends

The coal strike may have dimmed the pre-holiday lights, but the Retail Merchants association still hopes it can turn on the festive decorations now hung in Central park.

In case you've wondered why workers continue to erect the Christmas decorations, with its thousands of colored lights, in the park, V. H. Lodde, secretary-manager of the association, has the answer.

"We feel that since so much of the work already had been done, the job might just as well be completed for people to enjoy during the daylight hours and then if the brown-out order is rescinded, we'd be ready to go," he explained.

Lodde said the decorations consist of approximately 4,000 red and green lights connected by 8,000 to 10,000 feet of electric cord, and 1,500 yards of perishable laurel leaves.

Still to be erected around the fountain is a large laurel bell containing white lights.

GRANGE TO MEET

LEXINGTON — The annual Christmas meeting of Columbian Grange will be held in the Grange hall Saturday, beginning at 8 p. m., Mrs. Charles Lawrence, secretary, announced today. There will be a Christmas exchange of gifts, and devotions will be in charge of the chaplain, Mrs. Hoyt Cleland.

THREE INJURED AS CARS CRASH

Three persons were injured, none seriously, about 6:30 p. m., yesterday when a car crashed into one that was being towed on U. S. Route 30-N five miles west of Mansfield, state highway patrolmen reported.

Injured were Howard W. Richardson, 30, Attleboro, Mass.; his wife, Jean, 25, and Samuel J. Marvicsin, 28, of 412 Sherman avenue. They were treated for lacerations and bruises. Mrs. Richardson, who suffered face lacerations, shock, and contusions, is in General hospital.

Patrolmen said Marvicsin was towing a car which had no tail light and Richardson's car crashed into the rear of the towed vehicle. The cars were headed east.

Marvicsin was fined $10 and costs in municipal court today on a charge of towing a car without lights.

Fourteen white Wyandotte chickens will be displayed at the National Poultry show in Cleveland tomorrow by Sherman Bowden and son, South Main street road.

The show will be held at the Public auditorium Thursday through Sunday. Prizes are to be awarded to class champions and grand champions.

The Bowdens raise Wyandottes exclusively and as a specialty. They annually enter chickens in poultry shows and have been raising them for more than two generations.

AUTO SUPPLIES AVAILABLE

CLEVELAND — (AP) — The Regional War Assets Administration announced today that nearly $3,000,000 worth of government surplus automotive maintenance equipment stored at Lordstown Ordnance depot near Warren, O., now was available to commercial buyers.

STATE SETS UP MEET ON PLANS FOR ROUTE 13

Long deferred action on obtaining a new first class highway around Mansfield's new airport is to be discussed by county and state officials and interested representatives of the public at a meeting in the courthouse Dec. 12, it was announced today.

County Engineer Walter E. Rusk said Perry T. Ford, state director of highways, called him this morning to arrange for the meeting.

"The director asked that an open caucus be held on the subject. All persons interested in the project are invited," Rusk said.

State Route 13 was officially abandoned by the highway department in 1944 when the airport was constructed. In its place the county has built and maintained an earth-surface road (County Road 13-A) that is winding and hilly and has been called unsatisfactory for the heavy traffic entering Mansfield from the north.

One of the strongest supporters of a proposed new highway to replace the old State Route 13 has been the Richland County Auto club. It has reported numerous complaints from trucking companies and residents to the north of the city.

Several months ago the county engineer's office began preparation of surveys for two proposed routes around the port, one to the west and one to the east. The eastern route may also include a subway under the tracks of the Erie railroad to provide for a connecting link with State Route 545 entering the city from the northeast.

State highway department officials in the past had said that the state could not commit itself to construction of the highway until county commissioners made the surveys and provided a right-of-way. The surveys have been completed for several weeks, but land for the right-of-way must still be obtained.

Although no official action is expected to be taken at the Dec. 12 meeting, potentialities of the project may be cleared up, Rusk said.

YOUTHS ASKED TO JOIN NAVY

Mansfield high school seniors and graduates were reminded today that there are only 45 days left in which they may apply for enrollment in the navy's new college training programs.

Chief J. T. Daley, in charge of the Mansfield naval recruiting station, said Dec. 17 is the deadline for applications to take the nation-wide competitive examinations on Jan. 18, 1947, to enter the Naval Examination Section, Princeton, N. J. Mansfield is one of the cities in which the examinations will be given.

This new program offers a four-year college education at navy expense plus a commission in the navy or marine corps upon graduation. Detailed information for men between 17 and 21 years of age is available at the navy recruiting station or from the principal at Mansfield Senior high school, Daley said.

200 See Moose 'Child City' Film

Approximately 200 members and guests of the Mansfield Moose lodge last night saw a vivid picturization of the organization's service for the children of deceased members. The film "Child City" depicted life at the Mooseheart home, located in Mooseheart, Ill.

A social followed showing of the film. Bill Leicy's orchestra played for dancing. Refreshments were served.

Harold Schaffer of Delaware, membership director of Ohio, supervised showing of the movie.

Up and Down The Street

Christmas season might be said to have "officially" entered Mansfield at 9:45 p. m. last night. At least that's how a lover of the traditional Christmas tree expressed it. For at that time there was seen to enter the center of the darkened city a truck loaded down with evergreens which soon will be sparkling with decorations and candy peppermint sticks. This was the first load of trees observed and on top of it, according to this observer anyway, old Saint Nick could almost be seen smiling jovially.

* * *

GOOD START—

Mansfield had the promise of improved sidewalks today. City council last night authorized a survey of all the city's crumbling walks. Two street department crewmen are to do the job. When the survey is completed council's street committee will take some action to have walks repaired. Councilman Fred Miller, committee chairman, said he has had numerous complaints concerning the walks and urged repairs as soon as possible.

* * *

WON'T BE LONG—

Of course Mansfielders have been doing their Christmas shopping for several weeks, but the yule season isn't "officially" here until the Christmas trees begin to appear. A truckload of evergreens which passed through the downtown area last night probably stirred the imagination of all the youngsters who saw it. Despite the darkened business district due to the coal strike, the boys and girls could see brightly lighted trees in their homes with all the gifts that go with them.

NEED FOR MAIN ROUTE TO BIG CENTERS CITED

Brief to Be Filed With Federal Agency Protests Limited North-South Feeder Line.

The city of Mansfield today forwarded to the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington a brief taking exception to the CAB's previous recommendation that Mansfield be authorized only a north-south airline service.

The brief, prepared jointly by the city and the Chamber of Commerce, declared that "Mansfield's community of interest is primarily east and west" and termed "naive" the CAB examiner's previous recommendation.

* * *

Approves Brief.

Signed by City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner it was approved at a meeting yesterday attended by Mayor Roy W. Vaughn, Service-Safety Director William W. Enlow, Wagner, John G. Routzon, the chamber's secretary-manager, C. H. Henkel, Mansfield attorney, and Alan R. Tappan, president of the Tappan Stove company and aviation enthusiast.

Trans-World Airlines and United Airlines both have applied to the CAB for east-west service through Mansfield. Previously, the board had recommended only a Cleveland-to-Columbus feeder service.

The brief forwarded to the CAB will be considered by the board and an oral hearing will be held in Washington within a month or two. A board ruling probably will not be issued until next spring, and service, if approved, is not likely to be started at municipal airport until next summer.

* * *

Calls Plan 'Naive.'

The brief declared "it is naive to believe that the primary needs of the citizens of Mansfield will be satisfied with a feeder service which makes it necessary for the traveler to go north or south before he can go east or west, as would be required under the examiners' recommendation.

"We believe the public interest would be better served by authorizing a trunk-line carrier to serve relatively small cities where the need is shown."

It pointed out that hotel registration figures indicate "a strong community of interest" with large cities both to the east and west, and cited the large industries here, such as Westinghouse and Tappan Stove, which have branch factories or offices in eastern cities.

"Mansfield has no objection to being included in the board's plans for the development of a secondary air pattern," the brief stated. "This community does object, however, to its inclusion in such development if such inclusion means denial of the more important and needed trunk-line service."

The city concluded its argument by pointing out a trunk-line service is "absolutely imperative" and that "all the evidence we have submitted supports this contention and in addition we have a $2,000,000 airport, including modern lighting facilities, ready to go."

X-RAY ADDITION GETS APPROVAL

Approval of a $20,000 addition to General hospital to house an X-ray department was announced yesterday by the Civilian Production administration's Cleveland district office.

Also approved by the CPA was an $8,000 addition to the Brandenburg Chevrolet company, 140 Park avenue east. Approval was granted on the grounds that the addition would be of no impact on veterans' housing.

The new hospital addition will be built in the court space at the hospital adjacent to the present X-ray department. It will be about 24 by 40 feet, large enough to accommodate a new X-ray machine.

Plans for the addition are nearly compete, board members have reported. Previously, the cost of the building was estimated at $17,000.

Broadway

By Dorothy Kilgallen

Jottings In Pencil—Leo Durocher and Laraine Day definitely will be married—probably in the Spring. He arrived in New York with a pocketful of pictures of the lovely actress and her three children . . . Gen. Jimmy Doolittle can become an Ambassador any time he wants to give up his $50,000 a year job in commercial aviation . . . Domonic DiMaggio invited his sweetheart to San Francisco to meet his family, and there was some talk that they'd be married there. But she left after a few days and returned to her Wisconsin home . . . Washington whispers have it that a whole group of high-ranking generals are on the verge of resigning.

* * *

Love certainly seems to be laughing at wedlock, to which a cliche, in the case of Artie Shaw and Kathleen Winsor. The housing shortage has added complications to their already complicated honeymoon, so "Amber" and Artie (who occupy separate rooms under one hotel roof to forestall further critical snorts from the West Coast courts) have moved twice since their recent arrival locally, and may move again any minute . . . Gertrude Lawrence is dickering with a movie company—may sign to do a picture at any moment. It would be her first Hollywood stint; her other celluloid ventures occurred in England and Astoria.

* * *

Ingrid Bergman's bob-with-bangs, on view in "Joan of Lorraine," is her own hair, not a wig. Audiences keep arguing about it . . . Mike Romanoff has received his final citizenship papers . . . The Lee Dixons (he's the dancer) will give their marriage another try . . . The Department of Justice is preparing to break a new war scandal. It involves the overpayment of freight rates by the Army to railroads . . . Glenda Farrell's boy, Tommy, and Ann Frances Kass are holding up their wedding plans for that old familiar reason — the apartment famine.

* * *

Keenan Wynn is sending posies to Gretchen Hauser . . . Wally Wanger, the floor show impresario, is embarking on a new project that sounds like a good idea. He is opening a large school and agency (a la the John Powers and Conover model factories) for showgirls and chorines. He'll keep complete photo files, background data, etc. on all the pretties and will try to educate the producers to visit his "casting emporium" instead of holding chorus calls . . . Sonja Henie is "very fond" of Stuart Barthelmess, but at the moment has no intention of matrimony. And that's straight from the skates.

* * *

Madeleine Carroll arrives here this week, en route to the cinema village to resume her picture career, which she interrupted to do serious war work . . . The numerous changes apparently helped "Toplitsky of Notre Dame." Buffalo papers reversed the Boston critics' decision and gave it critical raves . . . Most amusing cook book of the decade is "How Mama Could Cook!" by Dorothy Malone—a blend of gay reading (about a family) and mouth-watering culinary ideas . . . Kay Francis is slated to undergo major surgery shortly. An abdominal ailment . . . They say Veronica Lake's descriptions of her ranch chores rate high in the comedy department . . . Hedy Lamarr's husband, John Loder, took a batch of playscripts back to California for Glamourpuss to read. She'd like to try Broadway after the baby comes.

Barclay On Bridge

UNLESS BRIDGE is going to be a source of grief, instead of happiness, for you, it is well to brace yourself against injustices that can befall you at almost any twist or turn. One of the most depressing of these comes when you know you have bid the hand in the best possible way, from the standpoint of soundness, and arrive at the theoretically best contract, only to be set by a defensive cross-ruff. After the debacle, you learn that incorrect bidding, getting you into a worse contract, would have produced a game.

	♠ Q J 8 5 4 ♥ K Q 7 ♦ A K ♣ K Q 10
♠ K 2 ♥ A 10 6 4 ♦ 2 ♣ 8 7 5 4 3	N W E S	♠ 9 6 3 ♥ 8 ♦ 10 9 8 3 ♣ A J 9 6
	♠ A 10 7 ♥ J 9 5 3 ♦ Q J 6 5 4 ♣ 2

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1. 2 NT	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	3 NT
2. 1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠

Here is another of those hands which got bid a lot of different ways, including one case of an opening 1-Spade bid by North passed by South. The calling at Table 2 was probably the soundest, as North with his powerful hand made it easy for South to respond on the first round by bidding just 1-Club, then jumping with his spade suit, and later rebidding it to show it was of five cards.

Looking at just the North and South holdings, you would think the side was in a perfect contract, at which only one trick could be lost in spades, one in hearts and one in clubs. But the opponents' "nasty dispositions," or to be more exact, distributions, decided otherwise.

The heart opening, won by the A, was followed by a heart ruff. The diamond 3 was led to the A, and North finessed the spade Q to the K. Now came a second heart ruff, the club A and the diamond 2 ruffed by the spade 2. Counting the three defensive ruffs, North was beaten three tricks. You can't blame him for wanting to chew tacks, when he noted what a cinch it was to make an extra trick at 3-No Trumps, the wrong contract.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, December 4.

Most propitious auguries for advancement, solidification of cherished and long worked for plans and objectives are in line for support and hearty cooperation from those in power and influence, either in employment, business or public place. Such are disposed to give generous reward and approbation for concrete performance, for faithful service and work well done. However, there is sign of secrecy or so-called "double-talk" that might ignite flares of bad temper, rash words or hectic conduct. Maintain calm, balance and keep your "tongue in cheek" for best results.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a year of very definite returns for diligence, responsibility, hard work and sound performance, as well as personal integrity and fidelity, from those in power. These may be generous with tangible rewards, with sincere approbation and encouragement, yet there is a somewhat sincere approbation and encouragement, yet there is a somewhat sinister undercurrent bespeaking treachery, double-dealing or intrigue. Such may flash into the limelight and incite irrational, emotional, reckless and altogether intemperate behavior, unless the calmest and shrewdest attitude be preserved. Great issues for future security and solidarity being at stake, keep firm restraint.

A child born on this day should possess excellent qualities and talents for sound success, rewards of merit and dependability, but is also menaced by rash urges and sinister undertones.

For Thursday, December 5.

A most propitious and encouraging day, for attacking plans and programs of major importance by direct, forthright and aggressive action. A time of highly stimulated energies and faculties, with initiative and fervor for putting over ambitious constructive projects, possibly of fresh purpose or objective. Organize toward this end, work out difficult problems with skill, accuracy and energy. "Strike while the iron is hot" for concrete results and enduring progress.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to find much incentive and stimulus for reaching out toward cherished goals, along fresh and tangible lines, with initiative and enterprise. The prospect of developing constructive and well-organized plans is encouraged by a bold spirit of creative energy along progressive and aggressive patterns, with physical and mental courage and determination under splendid impetus for concrete performance. In this there should be ready support from associates for sound, practical and meritorious projects. Strengthen personal prestige as well, under such constructive vibrations.

A child born on this day is under a constructive rule for enthusiastic, energetic and determined forces and faculties, with a fine "will to win" against all obstacles.

Pegler — Fair Enough

NEW YORK—Life, the pictorial magazine, recently presented an article purporting to be a review of the Communist movement, or conspiracy, in the United States by an expert.

The author was Arthur M. Schlesinger, jr.

The New York Herald Tribune selected Schlesinger to review a book called "The Plotters" by a man known by many names, including Arthur A. Derounian, Avedis Boghos Derounian and John Roy Carlson. Mr. Schlesinger thought well of the book itself and regarded the author as a sincere authority. In this latter particular he disagreed with Federal Judge John P. Barnes, of Chicago, who said from the bench, after a trial of the evidence, that Carlson was "a wholly irresponsible person who was willing to say anything for money," and added, "I wouldn't believe him on oath, now or at any time hereafter."

Of Carlson's chapter on the American Communist party, Schlesinger wrote that it was "not so complete as his picture of the Facists, largely because the efficiently organized Communist party is harder to penetrate by Carlson's methods."

The meaning of that remark plainly is that the Communist conspiracy is more dangerous because it is less easily unmasked. Nevertheless, Carlson and, I gather, Schlesinger, too, regard "Fascism" as the greater menace.

The reader with a free mind has a right to suspect that Carlson had undisclosed reasons for presenting an incomplete picture of the Communist conspiracy.

AN OUTSIDER certainly would have, as Schlesinger writes, great difficulty penetrating the Communists' iron curtain in American politics and unionism. But a person sympathetic with most, or all, of its aims might be loath to reveal it fully and might try to dismiss it as a secondary or unimportant threat. "But the chapter," on Communism, "shows amply that Carlson's awareness of the proto-Fascist use of Red-baiting as a means of smearing anyone to the left of General Franco does not suspend his conviction that liberals must nail down Communist activity wherever it is clear and probable," Schlesinger continued. I should prefer plainer Americanese, but these double-dome types do use an ideological geechee and we have to use their own wordage or they may say we distorted it. "Proto-Fascist" is their way of saying "pro-Fascist" or even "Fascist." William S. Gailmor, the sniveling thief who lectures along the party line, once explained that he found the device "Fascist-minded" to be useful, as it would be pretty hard to prove what was or wasn't in a victim's mind.

Canvassing Schlesinger's statements and assumptions, we find here that he does not accuse all anti-Communists of "smearing anyone to the left of General Franco." But there are many Americans in "the plotters" far to the left of General Franco who nevertheless indulge in "Red-baiting." I have done it for years, even when "Red-baiting" was regarded as undignified if not dirty pool. Why should the Reds enjoy exclusive immunity from "baiting?" And, moreover, there are those who regard all opposition to Communism as "red-baiting." Notwithstanding his "expose" in life, which I thought deficient in important matters for reasons which I am at liberty to surmise, I think Schlesinger could have gone much further in "life" without exposing himself to any reasonable charge of "red-baiting."

Othman — On Anything

WASHINGTON—(UP)—John L. Lewis looked like a Buddha in a gray vest one size too tight. The lawyers argued and the judge made pointed remarks, but John L's. expression never changed.

His gaze settled on the bright red dress of a radio girl in the courtroom and there it stayed. Nothing moved but the fingers of his right hand, fishing in his upper vest pocket.

These pudgy digits extracted finally a fat and pale perfecto banded in gold. Lewis held this masterpiece of the cigar-maker's art under his flared nostrils and sniffed its aroma. He must have been breathing, but no quiver came from any of his 240 pounds.

His lawyers were objecting to everything. The judge rocked comfortably in his red leather swivel chair and observed that the government's suggested findings of fact and law seemed about right to him.

The lawyer wondered if this meant the judge intended to find Lewis guilty of contempt. The judge said "yes." Then, said the lawyer, his client had a statement.

Ponderously the Buddha, who had not spoken in court in a week, got to his feet. From the inner pocket of his wrinkled, double-breasted coat he extracted a speech typed on onion-skin paper. He began in a low voice to read it. It was a trembly voice, charged with emotion, but with the words well-spaced.

I do not want to do John L. an injustice. It is not for me in a case like this to say that he was acting, but I'd bet my last remaining scoop of coal that this was a speech he'd rehearsed before a mirror. I can remember only one other orator who played upon an equally magnificent set of vocal cords as if they were a cathedral organ, making them roar and in the next breath sending them into an ear-cupping pianissimo. That was the late John Barrymore, reciting Hamlet's soliloquy in an otherwise forgotten movie.

About the only difference was that Barrymore wept when the camera stopped grinding.

* * *

WHAT LEWIS actually had to say about the sordid history of injunctions, the brutal work of the miners underground, and the deprivation of their constitutional rights you may read verbatim elsewhere. Nearly 50 of the best reporters in the business took down his every word, but it is impossible for reporters to convey on paper the bitterness and the almost-but-not-quite tone of sarcasm of the mighty organ when it boomed.

"Your injunction, sir, I respectfully submit, deprives the unions of their constitutional rights."

How can a reporter get across the idea that the intonation of that word, "respectfully," somehow seemed not quite that? Who is to say Lewis wasn't speaking respectfully? Maybe he can't help it when his inflections seem to belie his words. And, of course, maybe my ears are no good.

Anyway Lewis finished his speech with a bellow. He folded his manuscript and placed it in his pocket. He removed his eyeglasses. He resumed his chair.

The brows which seem to frame his eyes in unbrushed fur, turned in the direction of the red spot on the second bench. The judge ordered John L. back for sentencing today, but if the Buddha was listening there was no visible sign.

DON'T LET FIRE RUIN HOLIDAYS, STEELE URGES

Chief Points Out Danger in Home-Installed Heaters.

With three disastrous fires occurring in Ohio within the week to prove his point, Fire Chief L. J. Steele today warned that "this is the fire season" and said that "it can be the busiest in history."

Steele said the shortage of heating equipment and housing may cause a sharp increase in the number of winter fires. . . .

Because of the housng shortage many people are installing their own heating and cooking units in order to make space for several families in a single-family house.

"This is dangerous," he said, adding that the city's worst fire tragedy this year from a personal injury standpoint was caused by a gas stove which was improperly installed—by the owner.

He urged persons to have qualified plumbers or tinsmiths install heating or cooking units. He said that special caution should be taken in the installation of oil-burning stoves.

Blames Shortage.

The shortage of heating equipment is resulting in persons not being able to have their furnaces adequately serviced before they are put in use, the chief said.

He urged that they be inspected carefully and that, when possible, worn-out equipment be replaced. "In any event they should be properly cleaned," he said.

Another special fire hazard this year will be worn-out Christmas tree lights, the chief said. Persons haven't been able to buy new sets for years and the ones now in use can be dangerous unless properly insulated and wired, he said.

The chief also cautioned against these normal winter fire hazards:

1. Rubbish in furnace rooms.
2. Using gasoline or kerosene to start fires.
3. Burning spark-making materials, such as old, dry wood, which could ignite wood shingles.

As a final warning he again emphasized a long-standing "DON'T": "Don't permit small children to play with matches; keep them out of their reach."

MADISON SENIORS are shown above as they rehearsed "Ramshackle Inn," three-act mystery-comedy which they will present tomorrow night at the high school auditorium. Left to right they are: Charles Campbell, Don Cornell, Ken Gabor, Shirley Dillon, Betty Harris and Cornelia Mastrek. The play will open at 8:15 p. m. under the direction of Miss Eileen Stout.—(News-Journal staff photo)

Marked Dollar Bill Provides Clue In Bellville Burglaries

Residents in Mansfield and Richland county today were urged by the sheriff's department to be alert for a one-dollar bill defaced with the indelibly stamped words "Handle With Care."

Deputies said it is a valuable clue in the burglary of the high school and grade school buildings at Bellville last night when some $70 was stolen from a desk in the high school office.

"If anyone receives the bill and can remember from whom it is received it will aid us in the search for the burglars," deputies said. The stamped words are on the back of the bill, it was said.

The burglary was discovered this morning when the buildings were opened for classes. Entrance was gained through broken windows. Most of the missing money is in nickels, dimes and quarters. Also missing from the high school is a quart of milk. Nothing appeared ot be taken from the grade school, officers said.

ESCAPERS FACE JURY'S INQUIRY

Four Mansfield reformatory escapers today faced a special grand jury investigation after they made a futile attempt yesterday to escape from the Fairfield county jail in Lancaster.

A special jury session was called for next Tuesday after one of the group, Leland R. Earlenbaugh, 26, of Akron, injured Sheriff Harley Highley yesterday with a five-inch chunk of concrete torn from his cell.

A subsequent search disclosed the prisoners had cached several pieces of iron, a sharpened mop handle, a paring knife and a can opener.

The four youths, with a 17-year-old girl companion, terrorized northcentral Ohio several weeks ago when they escaped from the Grafton honor camp and abducted and robbed three men, including two Richland county residents, and stole two automobiles. They were captured in Millersburg 48 hours after their escape.

HEASLEY TO HEAD OHIO DRAMA CLINIC

Earl L. Heasley, head of the dramatics and speech department at Senior high school, will serve as chairman of the drama clinic to be held Saturday at Ohio State university under the sponsorship of the National Thespian society.

Heasley will head a panel of three judges who will consider pertinent questions on high school and college speech departments and phases of theatrical productions, submitted by drama and speech instructors throughout Ohio.

The judges will include Leah Funck of Fairmont high school in Dayton; Robert W. Ensley, State Teachers' college, Indiana, Pa., and Florence Powell, speech instructor at Middletown high school. The session will convene at 2 p. m. in Derby hall.

Following the clinic, the University Players will present "Angel Street."

Keep God's Spirit Alive, Pastor Urges

America's supreme task is to keep the spirit of God alive, Rev. Norman R. Somerville, pastor of the First Methodist church of Galion, last night told Co-operative club members and guests.

Describing a visit made last summer to the shrine of Father Divine, Somerville said, "This religious cult, a banquet of which we were privileged to observe, is exhibit 'A' of a tendency toward paganism in America."

R. Earl Brandenberg was program chairman of the dinner held in the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Yule Lights Will Be Ready If Strike Ends

The coal strike may have dimmed the pre-holiday lights, but the Retail Merchants' association still hopes it can turn on the festive decorations now hung in Central park.

In case you've wondered why workers continue to erect the Christmas decorations, with its thousands of colored lights, in the park, V. H. Lodde, secretary-manager of the association, has the answer.

"We feel that since so much of the work already had been done, the job might just as well be completed for people to enjoy during the daylight hours and then if the brown-out order is rescinded, we'd be ready to go," he explained.

Lodde said the decorations consist of approximately 4,000 red and green lights connected by 8,000 to 10,000 feet of electric cord, and 1,500 yards of perishable laurel leaves.

Still to be erected around the fountain is a large laurel bell containing white lights.

THREE INJURED AS CARS CRASH

Three persons were injured, none seriously, about 6:30 p. m., yesterday when a car crashed into one that was being towed on U. S. Route 30-N five miles west of Mansfield, state highway patrolmen reported.

Injured were Howard W. Richardson, 30, Attleboro, Mass.; his wife, Jean, 25, and Samuel J. Marvicsin, 28, of 412 Sherman avenue. They were treated for lacerations and bruises. Mrs. Richardson, who suffered face lacerations, shock, and contusions, is in General hospital.

Patrolmen said Marvicsin was towing a car which had no tail light and Richardson's car crashed into the rear of the towed vehicle. The cars were headed east.

Marvicsin was fined $10 and costs in municipal court today on a charge of towing a car without lights.

STATE SETS UP MEET ON PLANS FOR ROUTE 13

Long deferred action on obtaining a new first class highway around Mansfield's new airport is to be discussed by county and state officials and interested representatives of the public at a meeting in the courthouse Dec. 12, it was announced today.

County Engineer Walter E. Rusk said Perry T. Ford, state director of highways, called him this morning to arrange for the meeting.

"The director asked that an open caucus be held on the subject. All persons interested in the project are invited," Rusk said.

State Route 13 was officially abandoned by the highway department in 1944 when the airport was constructed. In its place the county has built and maintained an earth-surface road (County Road 13-A) that is winding and hilly and has been called unsatisfactory for the heavy traffic entering Mansfield from the north.

One of the strongest supporters of a proposed new highway to replace the old State Route 13 has been the Richland County Auto club. It has reported numerous complaints from trucking companies and residents to the north of the city.

Several months ago the county engineer's office began preparation of surveys for two proposed routes around the port, one to the west and one to the east. The eastern route may also include a subway under the tracks of the Erie railroad to provide for a connecting link with State Route 545 entering the city from the northeast.

State highway department officials in the past had said that the state could not commit itself to construction of the highway until county commissioners made the surveys and provided a right-of-way. The surveys have been completed for several weeks, but land for the right-of-way must still be obtained.

Although no official action is expected to be taken at the Dec. 12 meeting, potentialities of the project may be cleared up, Rusk said.

YOUTHS ASKED TO JOIN NAVY

Mansfield high school seniors and graduates were reminded today that there are only 45 days left in which they may apply for enrollment in the navy's new college training programs.

Chief J. T. Daley, in charge of the Mansfield naval recruiting station, said Dec. 17 is the deadline for applications to take the nation-wide competitive examinations on Jan. 18, 1947, to enter the Naval Examination Section, Princeton, N. J. Mansfield is one of the cities in which the examinations will be given.

This new program offers a four-year college education at navy expense plus a commission in the navy or marine corps upon graduation. Detailed information for men between 17 and 21 years of age is available at the navy recruiting station or from the principal at Mansfield Senior high school, Daley said.

200 See Moose 'Child City' Film

Approximately 200 members and guests of the Mansfield Moose lodge last night saw a vivid picturization of the organization's service for the children of deceased members. The film "Child City" depicted life at the Mooseheart home, located in Mooseheart, Ill.

A social followed showing of the film. Bill Leicy's orchestra played for dancing. Refreshments were served.

Harold Schaffer of Delaware, membership director of Ohio, supervised showing of the movie.

Up and Down The Street

Christmas season might be said to have "officially" entered Mansfield at 9:45 p. m. last night. At least that's how a lover of the traditional Christmas tree expressed it. For at that time there was seen to enter the center of the darkened city a truck loaded down with evergreens which soon will be sparkling with decorations and candy peppermint sticks. This was the first load of trees observed and on top of it, according to this observer anyway, old Saint Nick could almost be seen smiling jovially.

* * *

GOOD START—

Mansfield had the promise of improved sidewalks today. City council last night authorized a survey of all the city's crumbling walks. Two street department crewmen are to do the job. When the survey is completed council's street committee will take some action to have walks repaired. Councilman Fred Miller, committee chairman, said he has had numerous complaints concerning the walks and urged repairs as soon as possible.

* * *

WON'T BE LONG—

Of course Mansfielders have been doing their Christmas shopping for several weeks, but the yule season isn't "officially" here until the Christmas trees begin to appear. A truckload of evergreens which passed through the downtown area last night probably stirred the imagination of all the youngsters who saw it. Despite the darkened business district due to the coal strike, the boys and girls could see brightly lighted trees in their homes with all the gifts that go with them.

NEED FOR MAIN ROUTE TO BIG CENTERS CITED

Brief to Be Filed With Federal Agency Protests Limited North-South Feeder Line.

The city of Mansfield today forwarded to the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington a brief taking exception to the CAB's previous recommendation that Mansfield be authorized only a north-south airline service.

The brief, prepared jointly by the city and the Chamber of Commerce, declared that "Mansfield's community of interest is primarily east and west" and termed "naive" the CAB examiner's previous recommendation.

* * *

Approves Brief.

Signed by City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner it was approved at a meeting yesterday attended by Mayor Roy W. Vaughn, Service-Safety Director William W. Enlow, Wagner, John G. Routzon, the chamber's secretary-manager, C. H. Henkel, Mansfield attorney, and Alan P. Tappan, president of the Tappan Stove company and aviation enthusiast.

Trans-World Airlines and United Airlines both have applied to the CAB for east-west service through Mansfield. Previously, the board had recommended only a Cleveland-to-Columbus feeder service.

The brief forwarded to the CAB will be considered by the board and an oral hearing will be held in Washington within a month or two. A board ruling probably will not be issued until next spring, and service, if approved, is not likely to be started at municipal airport until next summer.

* * *

Calls Plan 'Naive.'

The brief declared "it is naive to believe that the primary needs of the citizens of Mansfield will be satisfied with a feeder service which makes it necessary for the traveler to go north or south before he can go east or west, as would be required under the examiners' recommendation.

"We believe the public interest would be better served by authorizing a trunk-line carrier to serve relatively small cities where the need is shown."

It pointed out that hotel registration figures indicate "a strong community of interest" with large cities both to the east and west, and cited the large industries here, such as Westinghouse and Tappan Stove, which have branch factories or offices in eastern cities.

"Mansfield has no objection to being included in the board's plans for the development of a secondary air pattern," the brief stated. "This community does object, however, to its inclusion in such development if such inclusion means denial of the more important and needed trunk-line service."

The city concluded its argument by pointing out a trunk-line service is "absolutely imperative" and that "all the evidence we have submitted supports this contention and in addition we have a $2,000,000 airport, including modern lighting facilities, ready to go."

X-RAY ADDITION GETS APPROVAL

Approval of a $20,000 addition to General hospital to house an X-ray department was announced yesterday by the Civilian Production administration's Cleveland district office.

Also approved by the CPA was an $8,000 addition to the Brandenburg Chevrolet company, 140 Park avenue east. Approval was granted on the grounds that the addition would be of no impact on veterans' housing.

The new hospital addition will be built in the court space at the hospital adjacent to the present X-ray department. It will be about 24 by 40 feet, large enough to accommodate a new X-ray machine.

Plans for the addition are nearly compete, board members have reported. Previously, the cost of the building was estimated at $17,000.

TYGERS ROLL OVER ALUMNI BASKETEERS, 47-27

NICK GAGICH TOP SCORER; OPEN FRIDAY

Student Prince Cagers Give Demonstration.

Mansfield Senior high basketball team made its first public showing a success last night by romping to a 47 to 27 victory over a Tyger alumni quintet in the feature attraction of the fourth annual cage clinic at the Bengal gym.

The Tygers, still suffering from early season raggedness, waiting until the final quarter to reach their peak but never trailed after the first two minutes. Leading 31-25 at the start of the final eight minutes Coach Vern Hoffman's lads poured home 16 points while holding the fast-tiring grads to two.

Nick Gagich, who entered the contest as a sub guard, paced the scorers with 10 counters. Chuck Sisco and Ollie Cline each contributed nine while Ralph Majors chipped in with eight.

Mansfield was troubled by spotty ball handling and some ragged passing, both usual preseason ailments, presaging some hard work for the Tygers before their season's opener with Wapakoneta in the Tyger lair Friday night. A reserve game opens the festivities at 7 p. m.

Hoffman's charges swamped Wapak, 42 to 29, last year and that was the only regular season contest the Redskins dropped. Coach Paul Schofer's quintet rolled up 17 straight wins before going down before Bowling Green in the sectional tournament.

Schofer has three lettermen available but only one Chuck Schaub was a regular last season. The Redskins, too, will be plagued by lack of height. John Neiter, a 1945-46 reserve, is the lone six-footer.

Lanky Jim Regula sent the alumni away to a two-point lead in the first quarter but Ralph Majors quickly tied the count. Chuck Sisco's gratis toss and a basket by Shelley Swank gave the Tygers a working margin.

The varsity squad led at the intermission points 11-5, 19-11 and 31-25.

Coach Paul Horneman and his Heidelberg Student Princes spotlighted the first half of the clinic program with an exhibition of the various type of zone defenses and methods of penetrating a zone.

Hoffman introduced the varsity cagers, Fred Staub the reserves and Harry Mehock gave a resume of basketball in the Mansfield schools. Tyger booster club basketball chairman was the master of ceremonies.

Proceeds of the clinic went to the Tyger pep band.

Uncle Mike Jacobs Suffers Collapse; Condition 'Grave'

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK —(AP)— Michael Straus (Mike) Jacobs, the nation's foremost boxing promoter for the past decade, was gravely ill at St Clare's hospital today after collapsing from a cerebral hemorrhage two blocks from Madison Square Garden.

Dr. Vincent Nardiello, Jacobs' personal physician and a member of the state athletic commission's medical staff, expressed belief that if the 66-year-old promoter showed improvement within 36 hours of his collapse late yesterday "he'll make the grade."

Jacobs, famous as the proprietor of $1,000,000-a-year beak busting business, was reported in a semi-conscious condition during the night, but Dr. Nardiello said early today:

"He is resting as comfortably as possible now. His blood pressure has come down. His pulse is better and he can swallow again. These can be counted as encouraging signs. But he is in a grave condition, and it is now entirely a matter of waiting."

Just a month ago, the man who has controlled virtually every champion from heavyweight down to lightweight since he signed up the exclusive services of Joe Louis in the mid-thirties, suffered a thrombis—a minor facial paralysis. That cleared up in 18 hours, and he returned to his spacious Twentieth Century Sporting club —which is another way of saying Mike Jacobs—in Madison Square Garden on Nov. 14.

Mt. Vernon Trips Ram Five, 55-28

INEXPERIENCE COSTLY FOR MADISON FIVE

MT. VERNON — An inexperienced Mansfield Madison cage team lost 55-28, to a smooth-passing veteran Mt. Vernon quintet here last night.

Paced by Forward Ernie Williams and Center Bill Curry with 39 points, Mt. Vernon scored 23 points in the second stanza to lead 35-16 at the half. Williams netted 22 points and Curry, 17.

Eldon Pritchard and Dick Ernsberger led the Rams with 10 points each. Pritchard scored five field goals and Ernsberger sank two long shots and six foul shots.

Coach Jeff DeHaven said he will put the Madison five through a long drill this evening in hopes of ironing out the many weaknesses brought out in last night's contest.

Coach Bill Kopcial's reserve team dropped the preliminary tilt, 38-13.

TRADES ENLIGHTEN BASEBALL MEETING

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Forty or more presidents of minor league clubs have adopted a resolution accepting the retirement of President William G. Bramham, but are agreed on keeping the czar of little baseball as virtual president emeritus.

The matter, an important one in the annual major-minor meeting here, reached a semi-climax late last night, and before the minors conclude their sessions on the floor this week the entire organization will act on the recommendation of the president's "steering committee."

"We want Judge Bramham continued as a consultant, and a very learned one, for the minor leagues," said Tom Richardson of the Eastern league, who presided at the presidents' banquet after Bramham retired from the closed session.

Meanwhile, the George Trautman-for-president drive gained momentum.

Major league moguls sat on the sidelines as the minors held the spotlight, with their major sessions slated to get under way tomorrow.

A few trades enlightened the proceedings, however.

Brooklyn announced it had traded Outfielder Augie Galan to Cincinnati for Pitcher Ed Heusser, and the American league champs, the Boston Red Sox, gave Pinky Higgins his release to manage the Roanoke club of the Piedmont league.

The Red Sox signed Pitcher Mace Brown and George Pipgras as scouts.

Reports here were that Billy Jurges, veteran shortstop, would be sent by the Chicago Cubs to manage their triple-A farm, Los Angeles, while advices from Chicago said Jurges had been taken off the active player roster and would remain there as coach.

Washington ditched two catchers, trading Jake Early to the St. Louis Browns for Frank Mancuso, and selling Mickey Guerra to the Philadelphia Athletics.

Bill Veeck, president of the Cleveland club, announced the sale of Krakauskas to Hollywood of the Pacific Coast league, and of Peters to the St. Louis Browns.

Lobby gossip at the major league meetings had the Indians anxious to send George Case and a bundle of cash back to Washington for veteran Center Fielder Stan Spence.

Pegler — Fair Enough

NEW YORK—Life, the pictorial magazine, recently presented an article purporting to be a review of the Communist movement, or conspiracy, in the United States by an expert.

The author was Arthur M. Schlesinger, jr.

The New York Herald Tribune selected Schlesinger to review a book called "The Plotters" by a man known by many names, including Arthur A. Derounian, Avedis Boghos Derounian and John Roy Carlson. Mr. Schlesinger thought well of the book itself and regarded the author as a sincere authority. In this latter particular he disagreed with Federal Judge John P. Barnes, of Chicago, who said from the bench, after a trial of the evidence, that Carlson was "a wholly irresponsible person who was willing to say anything for money," and added, "I wouldn't believe him on oath, now or at any time hereafter."

Of Carlson's chapter on the American Communist party, Schlesinger wrote that it was "not so complete as his picture of the Facists, largely because the efficiently organized Communist party is harder to penetrate by Carlson's methods."

The meaning of that remark plainly is that the Communist conspiracy is more dangerous because it is less easily unmasked. Nevertheless, Carlson and, I gather, Schlesinger, too, regard "Fascism" as the greater menace.

The reader with a free mind has a right to suspect that Carlson had undisclosed reasons for presenting an incomplete picture of the Communist conspiracy.

* * *

AN OUTSIDER certainly would have, as Schlesinger writes, great difficulty penetrating the Communists' iron curtain in American politics and unionism. But a person sympathetic with most, or all, of its aims might be loath to reveal it fully and might try to dismiss it as a secondary or unimportant threat. "But the chapter on Communism, "shows amply that Carlson's awareness of the proto-Fascist use of Red-baiting as a means of smearing anyone to the left of General Franco does not suspend his conviction that liberals must nail down Communist activity wherever it is clear and probable," Schlesinger continued. I should prefer plainer Americanese, but these double-dome types do use an ideological gobbledygook and we have to use their own wordage or they may say we distorted it. "Proto-Fascist" is the way of saying "pro-Fascist" or even "Fascist." William S. Gailmor, the sniveling thief who lectures along the party line, once explained that he found the devil "Fascist-minded" to be useful as it would be pretty hard to prove what was or wasn't in a victim's mind.

Canvassing Schlesinger's statements and assumptions, we find her that he does not accuse all anti-Communists of "smearing anyone to the left of General Franco." But there are many Americans in "the plotters" far to the left of General Franco who nevertheless indulge in "Red-baiting" I have done it for years, even when "Red-baiting" was regarded as undignified if not dirty pol. Why should the Reds enjoy exclusive immunity from "baiting?" And, moreover, there are those who regard all opposition to Communism as "red-baiting." Notwithstanding his "expose" in life, which I thought deficient in important matters for reasons which I am at liberty to surmise, I think Schlesinger could have gone much further in "life" without exposing himself to any reasonable charge of "red-baiting."

Othman — On Anything

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—John L. Lewis looked like a Buddha in a gray vest one size too tight. The lawyers argued and the judge made pointed remarks, but John L's. expression never changed.

His gaze settled on the bright red dress of a radio girl in the courtroom and there it stayed. Nothing moved but the fingers of his right hand, fishing in his upper vest pocket.

These pudgy digits extracted finally a fat and pale perfecto banded in gold. Lewis held this masterpiece of the cigar-maker's art under his flared nostrils and sniffed its aroma. He must have been breathing, but no quiver came from any of his 240 pounds.

His lawyers were objecting to everything. The judge rocked comfortably in his red leather swivel chair and observed that the government's suggested findings of fact and law seemed about right to him.

The lawyer wondered if this meant the judge intended to find Lewis guilty of contempt. The judge said "yes." Then, said the lawyer, his client had a statement.

Ponderously the Buddha, who had not spoken in court in a week, got to his feet. From the inner pocket of his wrinkled, double-breasted coat he extracted a speech typed on onion-skin paper. He began in a low voice to read it. It was a trembly voice, charged with emotion, but with the words well-spaced.

I do not want to do John L. an injustice. It is not for me in a case like this to say that he was acting, but I'd bet my last remaining scoop of coal that this was a speech he'd rehearsed before a mirror. I can remember only one other orator who played upon an equally magnificent set of vocal cords as if they were a cathedral organ, making them roar and in the next breath sending them into an ear-cupping pianissimo. That was the late John Barrymore, reciting Hamlet's soliloquy in an otherwise forgotten movie.

About the only difference was that Barrymore wept when the camera stopped grinding.

* * *

WHAT LEWIS actually had to say about the sordid history of injunctions, the brutal work of the miners underground, and the deprivation of their constitutional rights you may read verbatim elsewhere. Nearly 50 of the best reporters in the business took down his every word, but it is impossible for reporters to convey on paper the bitterness and the almost-but-not-quite tone of sarcasm of the mighty organ when it boomed.

"Your injunction, sir, I respectfully submit, deprives the unions of their constitutional rights."

How can a reporter get across the idea that the intonation of that word, "respectfully," somehow seemed not quite that? Who is to say Lewis wasn't speaking respectfully? Maybe he can't help it when his inflections seem to belie his words. And, of course, maybe my ears are no good.

Anyway Lewis finished his speech with a bellow. He folded his manuscript and placed it in his pocket. He removed his eyeglasses. He resumed his chair.

The brows, which seem to frame his eyes in unbrushed fur, turned in the direction of the red spot on the second bench. The judge ordered John L. back for sentencing today, but if the Buddha was listening there was no visible sign.

DON'T LET FIRE RUIN HOLIDAYS, STEELE URGES

Chief Points Out Danger in Home-Installed Heaters.

With three disastrous fires occurring in Ohio within the week to prove his point, Fire Chief L. J. Steele today warned that "this is the fire season" and said that "it can be the busiest in history."

Steele said the shortage of heating equipment and housing may cause a sharp increase in the number of winter fires. ...

Because of the housng shortage many people are installing their own heating and cooking units in order to make space for several families in a single-family house.

"This is dangerous," he said, adding that the city's worst fire tragedy this year from a personal injury standpoint was caused by a gas stove which was improperly installed—by the owner.

He urged persons to have qualified plumbers or tinsmiths install heating or cooking units. He said that special caution should be taken in the installation of oil-burning stoves.

* * *

Blames Shortage.

The shortage of heating equipment is resulting in persons not being able to have their furnaces adequately serviced before they are put in use, the chief said.

He urged that they be inspected carefully and that, when possible, worn-out equipment be replaced. "In any event they should be properly cleaned," he said.

Another special fire hazard this year will be worn-out Christmas tree lights, the chief said. Persons haven't been able to buy new sets for years and the ones now in use can be dangerous unless properly insulated and wired, he said.

The chief also cautioned against these normal winter fire hazards:

1. Rubbish in furnace rooms.
2. Using gasoline or kerosene to start fires.
3. Burning spark-making materials, such as old, dry wood, which could ignite wood shingles.

As a final warning he again emphasized a long-standing "DON'T": "Don't permit small children to play with matches; keep them out of their reach."

ESCAPERS FACE JURY'S INQUIRY

Four Mansfield reformatory escapers today faced a special grand jury investigation after they made a futile attempt yesterday to escape from the Fairfield county jail in Lancaster.

A special jury session was called for next Tuesday after one of the group, Leland R. Earlenbaugh, 26, of Akron, injured Sheriff Harley Highley yesterday with a five-inch chunk of concrete torn from his cell.

A subsequent search disclosed the prisoners had cached several pieces of iron, a sharpened mop handle, a paring knife and a can opener.

The four youths, with a 17-year-old girl companion, terrorized northcentral Ohio several weeks ago when they escaped from the Grafton honor camp and abducted and robbed three men, including two Richland county residents, and stole two automobiles. They were captured in Millersburg 48 hours after their escape.

HEASLEY TO HEAD OHIO DRAMA CLINIC

Earl L. Heasley, head of the dramatics and speech department at Senior high school, will serve as chairman of the drama clinic to be held Saturday at Ohio State university under the sponsorship of the National Thespian society.

Heasley will head a panel of three judges who will consider pertinent questions on high school and college speech departments and phases of theatrical productions, submitted by drama and speech instructors throughout Ohio.

The judges will include Leah Funck of Fairmont high school in Dayton; Robert W. Ensley, State Teachers' college, Indiana, Pa., and Florence Powell, speech instructor at Middletown high school. The session will convene at 2 p. m. in Derby hall.

Following the clinic, the University Players will present "Angel Street."

Keep God's Spirit Alive, Pastor Urges

America's supreme task is to keep the spirit of God alive, Rev. Norman R. Somerville, pastor of the First Methodist church of Galion, last night told Co-operative club members and guests.

Describing a visit made last summer to the shrine of Father Divine, Somerville said, "This religious cult, a banquet of which we were privileged to observe, is exhibit 'A' of a tendency toward paganism in America."

R. Earl Brandenberg was program chairman of the dinner held in the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Marked Dollar Bill Provides Clue In Bellville Burglaries

Residents in Mansfield and Richland county today were urged by the sheriff's department to be alert for a one-dollar bill defaced with the indelibly stamped words "Handle With Care."

Deputies said it is a valuable clue in the burglary of the high school and grade school buildings at Bellville last night when some $70 was stolen from a desk in the high school office.

"If anyone receives the bill and can remember from whom it is received it will aid us in the search for the burglars," deputies said. The stamped words are on the back of the bill, it was said.

The burglary was discovered this morning when the buildings were opened for classes. Entrance was gained through broken windows. Most of the missing money is in nickels, dimes and quarters. Also missing from the high school is a quart of milk. Nothing appeared ot be taken from the grade school, officers said.

Yule Lights Will Be Ready If Strike Ends

The coal strike may have dimmed the pre-holiday lights, but the Retail Merchants' association still hopes it can turn on the festive decorations now hung in Central park.

In case you've wondered why workers continue to erect the Christmas decorations, with its thousands of colored lights, in the park, V. H. Lodde, secretary-manager of the association, has the answer.

"We feel that since so much of the work already had been done, the job might just as well be completed for people to enjoy during the daylight hours and then if the brown-out order is rescinded, we'd be ready to go," he explained.

Lodde said the decorations consist of approximately 4,000 red and green lights connected by 8,000 to 10,000 feet of electric cord, and 1,500 yards of perishable laurel leaves.

Still to be erected around the fountain is a large laurel bell containing white lights.

THREE INJURED AS CARS CRASH

Three persons were injured, none seriously, about 6:30 p. m., yesterday when a car crashed into one that was being towed on U. S. Route 30-N five miles west of Mansfield, state highway patrolmen reported.

Injured were Howard W. Richardson, 30, Attleboro, Mass.; his wife, Jean, 25, and Samuel J. Marvicsin, 28, of 412 Sherman avenue. They were treated for lacerations and bruises. Mrs. Richardson, who suffered face lacerations, shock, and contusions, is in General hospital.

Patrolmen said Marvicsin was towing a car which had no tail light and Richardson's car crashed into the rear of the towed vehicle. The cars were headed east.

Marvicsin was fined $10 and costs in municipal court today on a charge of towing a car without lights.

STATE SETS UP MEET ON PLANS FOR ROUTE 13

Long deferred action on obtaining a new first class highway around Mansfield's new airport is to be discussed by county and state officials and interested representatives of the public at a meeting in the courthouse Dec. 12, it was announced today.

County Engineer Walter E. Rusk said Perry T. Ford, state director of highways, called him this morning to arrange for the meeting.

"The director asked that an open caucus be held on the subject. All persons interested in the project are invited," Rusk said.

State Route 13 was officially abandoned by the highway department in 1944 when the airport was constructed. In its place the county has built and maintained an earth-surface road (County Road 13-A) that is winding and hilly and has been called unsatisfactory for the heavy traffic entering Mansfield from the north.

One of the strongest supporters of a proposed new highway to replace the old State Route 13 has been the Richland County Auto club. It has reported numerous complaints from trucking companies and residents to the north of the city.

Several months ago the county engineer's office began preparation of surveys for two proposed routes around the port, one to the west and one to the east. The eastern route may also include a subway under the tracks of the Erie railroad to provide for a connecting link with State Route 545 entering the city from the northeast.

State highway department officials in the past had said that the state could not commit itself to construction of the highway until county commissioners made the surveys and provided a right-of-way. The surveys have been completed for several weeks, but land for the right-of-way must still be obtained.

Although no official action is expected to be taken at the Dec. 12 meeting, potentialities of the project may be cleared up, Rusk said.

YOUTHS ASKED TO JOIN NAVY

Mansfield high school seniors and graduates were reminded today that there are only 45 days left in which they may apply for enrollment in the navy's new college training programs.

Chief J. T. Daley, in charge of the Mansfield naval recruiting station, said Dec. 17 is the deadline for applications to take the nation-wide competitive examinations on Jan. 18, 1947, to enter the Naval Examination Section, Princeton, N. J. Mansfield is one of the cities in which the examinations will be given.

This new program offers a four-year college education at navy expense plus a commission in the navy or marine corps upon graduation. Detailed information for men between 17 and 21 years of age is available at the navy recruiting station or from the principal at Mansfield Senior high school, Daley said.

200 See Moose 'Child City' Film

Approximately 200 members and guests of the Mansfield Moose lodge last night saw a vivid picturization of the organization's service for the children of deceased members. The film "Child City" depicted life at the Mooseheart home, located in Mooseheart, Ill.

A social followed showing of the film. Bill Leicy's orchestra played for dancing. Refreshments were served.

Harold Schaffer of Delaware, membership director of Ohio, supervised showing of the movie.

Up and Down The Street

Christmas season might be said to have "officially" entered Mansfield at 9:45 p. m. last night. At least that's how a lover of the traditional Christmas tree expressed it. For at that time there was seen to enter the center of the darkened city a truck loaded down with evergreens which soon will be sparkling with decorations and candy peppermint sticks. This was the first load of trees observed and on top of it, according to this observer anyway, old Saint Nick could almost be seen smiling jovially.

* * *

GOOD START—

Mansfield had the promise of improved sidewalks today. City council last night authorized a survey of all the city's crumbling walks. Two street department crewmen are to do the job. When the survey is completed council's street committee will take some action to have walks repaired. Councilman Fred Miller, committee chairman, said he has had numerous complaints concerning the walks and urged repairs as soon as possible.

* * *

WON'T BE LONG—

Of course Mansfielders have been doing their Christmas shopping for several weeks, but the yule season isn't "officially" here until the Christmas trees begin to appear. A truckload of evergreens which passed through the downtown area last night probably stirred the imagination of all the youngsters who saw it. Despite the darkened business district due to the coal strike, the boys and girls could see brightly lighted trees in their homes with all the gifts that go with them.

NEED FOR MAIN ROUTE TO BIG CENTERS CITED

Brief to Be Filed With Federal Agency Protests Limited North-South Feeder Line.

The city of Mansfield today forwarded to the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington a brief taking exception to the CAB's previous recommendation that Mansfield be authorized only a north-south airline service.

The brief, prepared jointly by the city and the Chamber of Commerce, declared that "Mansfield's community of interest is primarily east and west" and termed "naive" the CAB examiner's previous recommendation.

* * *

Approves Brief.

Signed by City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner it was approved at a meeting yesterday attended by Mayor Roy W. Vaughn, Service-Safety Director William W. Enlow, Wagner, John G. Routzon, the chamber's secretary-manager, C. H. Henkel, Mansfield attorney, and Alan R. Tappan, president of the Tappan Stove company and aviation enthusiast.

Trans-World Airlines and United Airlines both have applied to the CAB for east-west service through Mansfield. Previously, the board had recommended only a Cleveland-to-Columbus feeder service.

The brief forwarded to the CAB will be considered by the board and an oral hearing will be held in Washington within a month or two. A board ruling probably will not be issued until next spring, and service, if approved, is not likely to be started at municipal airport until next summer.

* * *

Calls Plan 'Naive.'

The brief declared "it is naive to believe that the primary needs of the citizens of Mansfield will be satisfied with a feeder service which makes it necessary for the traveler to go north or south before he can go east or west, as would be required under the examiners' recommendation.

"We believe the public interest would be better served by authorizing a trunk-line carrier to serve relatively small cities where the need is shown."

It pointed out that hotel registration figures indicate "a strong community of interest" with large cities both to the east and west, and cited the large industries here, such as Westinghouse and Tappan Stove, which have branch factories or offices in eastern cities.

"Mansfield has no objection to being included in the board's plans for the development of a secondary air pattern," the brief stated. "This community does object, however, to its inclusion in such development if such inclusion means denial of the more important and needed trunk-line service."

The city concluded its argument by pointing out a trunk-line service is "absolutely imperative" and that "all the evidence we have submitted supports this contention and in addition we have a $2,000,000 airport, including modern lighting facilities, ready to go."

X-RAY ADDITION GETS APPROVAL

Approval of a $20,000 addition to General hospital to house an X-ray department was announced yesterday by the Civilian Production administration's Cleveland district office.

Also approved by the CPA was an $8,000 addition to the Brandenburg Chevrolet company, 140 Park avenue east. Approval was granted on the grounds that the addition would be of no impact on veterans' housing.

The new hospital addition will be built in the court space at the hospital adjacent to the present X-ray department. It will be about 24 by 40 feet, large enough to accommodate a new X-ray machine.

Plans for the addition are nearly compete, board members have reported. Previously, the cost of the building was estimated at $17,000.

Data Ready on Navy-Marine Training Plan

Young men interested in obtaining a four-year college education in return for accepting commissions as officers in the navy or Marine corps upon completion of training may obtain complete details at the Mansfield Naval recruiting station, according to Chief J. T. Daley.

The station has received bulletins which explain in detail the requirements and basis for applying for examination to participate in the Navy-Marine college training programs.

Under the 1947 program, Mansfield will be a testing center for those in this area who submit their application blanks to the board of examiners at Princeton, N. J., before the deadline on Dec. 17, Daley said.

Two programs are offered: A naval reserve officers' training corps and a navy aviation college program Both enable those chosen to attend a college of their choice from among the 52 approved throughout the nation by the navy and to receive payment of all tuition, fees and textbooks, plus a monthly expense allotment.

Application blanks for the examination and descriptive literature are also available at the principal's office at Senior high school.

PILES ARE NEVER MILD

DANGER IN NEGLECT

No one should ever think of piles (hemorrhoids as a "mild" disorder.

Although they may seem a "mild" ailment, especially when not giving pain or inconvenience, piles are in fact tumor formations without tendency to heal themselves, instead, they are likely, if neglected, to keep increasing in size, involving more and more of the rectal area.

Even a so-called "mild" case may be expected to undermine one's health, by inviting predisposing to or aggravating other ailments, such as: indigestion, biliousness, stomach trouble, constipation, headaches, pain in the back and down the legs, secondary anemia with its run down tired feeling and general nervous irritability

Removal of piles is the only permanent relief — written guarantee. My method produces little or no discomfort, does not require the use of knife or drugs, and seldom is the patient required to lose any time from work or other duties.

TYGERS ROLL OVER ALUMNI BASKETEERS, 47-27

NICK GAGICH TOP SCORER; OPEN FRIDAY

Student Prince Cagers Give Demonstration.

Mansfield Senior high basketball team made its first public showing a success last night by romping to a 47 to 27 victory over a Tyger alumni quintet in the feature attraction of the fourth annual cage clinic at the Bengal gym.

The Tygers, still suffering from early season raggedness, waiting until the final quarter to reach their peak but never trailed after the first two minutes. Leading 31-25 at the start of the final eight minutes Coach Vern Hoffman's lads poured home 16 points while holding the fast-tiring grads to two.

Nick Gagich, who entered the contest as a sub guard, paced the scorers with 10 counters. Chuck Sisco and Ollie Cline each contributed nine while Ralph Majors chipped in with eight.

Mansfield was troubled by spotty ball handling and some ragged passing, both usual preseason ailments, presaging some hard work for the Tygers before their season's opener with Wapakoneta in the Tyger lair Friday night. A reserve game opens the festivities at 7 p. m.

Hoffman's charges swamped Wapak, 42 to 29, last year and that was the only regular season contest the Redskins dropped. Coach Paul Schofer's quintet rolled up 17 straight wins before going down before Bowling Green in the sectional tournament.

Schofer has three lettermen available but only one Chuck Schaub was a regular last season. The Redskins, too, will be plagued by lack of height. John Neiter, a 1945-46 reserve, is the lone six-footer.

Lanky Jim Regula sent the alumni away to a two-point lead in the first quarter but Ralph Majors quickly tied the count. Chuck Sisco's gratis toss and a basket by Shelley Swank gave the Tygers a working margin.

The varsity squad led at the intermission points 11-5, 19-11 and 31-25.

Coach Paul Horneman and his Heidelberg Student Princes spotlighted the first half of the clinic program with an exhibition of the various type of zone defenses and methods of penetrating a zone.

Hoffman introduced the varsity cagers, Fred Staub the reserves and Harry Mehock gave a resume of basketball in the Mansfield schools. Tyger booster club basketball chairman was the master of ceremonies.

Proceeds of the clinic went to the Tyger pep band.

Uncle Mike Jacobs Suffers Collapse; Condition 'Grave'

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK —(AP)— Michael Straus (Mike) Jacobs, the nation's foremost boxing promoter for the past decade, was gravely ill at St. Clare's hospital today after collapsing from a cerebral hemorrhage two blocks from Madison Square Garden.

Dr. Vincent Nardiello, Jacobs' personal physician and a member of the state athletic commission's medical staff, expressed belief that if the 66-year-old promoter showed improvement within 36 hours of his collapse late yesterday "he'll make the grade."

Jacobs, famous as the proprietor of $1,000,000-a-year beak busting business, was reported in a semi-conscious condition during the night, but Dr. Nardiello said early today:

"He is resting as comfortably as possible now. His blood pressure has come down. His pulse is better and he can swallow again. These can be counted as encouraging signs. But he is in a grave condition, and it is now entirely a matter of waiting."

Just a month ago, the man who has controlled virtually every champion from heavyweight down to lightweight since he signed up the exclusive services of Joe Louis in the mid-thirties, suffered a thrombis—a minor facial paralysis. That cleared up in 18 hours, and he returned to his spacious Twentieth Century Sporting club —which is another way of saying Mike Jacobs—in Madison Square Garden on Nov. 14.

Glenn Davis Gets Heisman Trophy

NEW YORK—(INS)—Glenn Davis personally and the Army football team as a whole were honored today by being voted trophies in recognition of their excellence in football.

Halfback Davis, of the unbeaten Army team, succeeds his teammate, Felix (Doc) Blanchard, as holder of the Heisman trophy awarded annually by the Downtown Athletic club to the outstanding college player in the nation.

Davis received 792 votes to top Charlie Trippi, of Georgia, who was runnerup with 435. Johnny Lujack, of Notre Dame, took third place with 379, then came Blanchard with 267.

The Army eleven was awarded the Lambert trophy symbolic of eastern college gridiron supremacy.

Bedtime Stories

—By Thornton W. Burgess

THE WASTEFUL ONE

Prickly Porky is one of the people of the Green Forest who think of little but eating. All he asks is to be let alone with plenty of food. Then he doesn't care if it rains or snows or the sun shines. He just spends his time eating and sleeping, not caring a slap of his prickly tail whether or not he has any friends, and sometimes it seems as if he hasn't a friend in the world.

It isn't that his neighbors are afraid of him. They are not. There is nothing to be afraid of as long as they don't get too near him, and they are careful not to do that. It is no trouble at all to get out of his way, for he is one of those people who do not like to hurry, and he seldom does. When he does it is a slow sort of hurrying. So his neighbors have no trouble at all in keeping a safe distance, and they are careful never to rub him the wrong way. It would be just too bad to do that—for the one who did it.

"Prickly Porks is the queerest fellow in the Green Forest," Jumper the Hare, who lives there, once told his cousin, Peter Rabbit, who just visits there.

"He has big teeth, as every one knows who has seen him, and he had big, stout claws but he doesn't use either to fight any one who is foolish enough to attack him. Doesn't that seem silly?" said Jumper.

"I've heard he fights with his tail," said Peter.

Jumper nodded. "With his tail and his coat," said he. "Perhaps it isn't quite the truth to say that he fights with his coat, but I guess that any one who tries to grab him and gets his mouth and face filled with the sharp little spears he carries in his coat, and that come out of that so easily but are so hard to pull out of anyone else, would say that he fights with his coat."

"I think," said Peter, "that that coat is the most wonderful thing. I wonder how it seems to know that nobody, or almost nobody, dares to touch you. What a grand feeling that must be! Wouldn't you like to have a coat like that?"

"Not if it was to mean that I couldn't get around any faster than Prickly Porky can. I wouldn't trade my long heels for his sharp spears. No, sir, I wouldn't," replied Jumper.

"Nor me," agreed Peter. "Still—well, it would be nice not to be afraid."

"Not at the price of being as slow and stupid as Prickly Porky is," retorted Jumper and there was no doubt all that he meant it. "He's wasteful, too," he added.

Peter thought this over for a minute. "Why do you say that? In what way is he wasteful?" said Peter.

"You and I are big eaters, but we don't spoil a lot we can't eat and so waste it, do we?" said Jumper.

Peter started to say that this was true, but didn't say anything. Perhaps he remembered Farmer Brown's garden and the lettuce plants there that he had spoiled by taking a few bites from each instead of eating just one or two, but probably he didn't think of it at all. Thoughtfulness seldom goes with wastefulness. Thoughtful people seldom are wasteful.

"Do you mean that Prickly Porky spoils a lot of good food?" asked Peter.

His big cousin nodded. "He sometimes does in a way. He cuts more than he can eat. Of course that soon gets dry and doesn't do anybody any good. If that isn't waste, what is it?" said he.

Just then something fell between them. For just a moment it startled them. Then they saw what it was, a small branch from the hemlock tree under which they were sitting. Jumper reached out and began to eat the green leaves. Those small needles of hemlock and pine and spruce are really leaves you know, as truly leaves as those of any other trees.

"So I am wasteful, am I?" said a voice up above them. It was half grunt, half whine.

They looked up. Above them in that tree was Prickly Porky. He was out on a big branch cutting off a small side branch.

The next story: "Was It Waste?"

Mt. Vernon Trips Ram Five, 55-28

INEXPERIENCE COSTLY FOR MADISON FIVE

MT. VERNON — An inexperienced Mansfield Madison cage team lost 55-28, to a smooth-passing veteran Mt. Vernon quintet here last night.

Paced by Forward Ernie Williams and Center Bill Curry with 39 points, Mt. Vernon scored 23 points in the second stanza to lead 35-16 at the half. Williams netted 22 points and Curry, 17.

Eldon Pritchard and Dick Ernsberger led the Rams with 10 points each. Pritchard scored five field goals and Ernsberger sank two long shots and six foul shots.

Coach Jeff DeHaven said he will put the Madison five through a long drill this evening in hopes of ironing out the many weaknesses brought out in last night's contest.

Coach Bill Kopcial's reserve team dropped the preliminary tilt, 38-13.

TRADES ENLIGHTEN BASEBALL MEETING

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Forty or more presidents of minor league clubs have adopted a resolution accepting the retirement of President William G. Bramham, but are agreed on keeping the czar of little baseball as virtual president emeritus.

The matter, an important one in the annual major-minor meeting here, reached a semi-climax late last night, and before the minors conclude their sessions on the floor this week the entire organization will act on the recommendation of the president's "steering committee."

"We want Judge Bramham continued as a consultant, and a very learned one, for the minor leagues," said Tom Richardson of the Eastern league, who presided at the presidents' banquet after Bramham retired from the closed session.

Meanwhile, the George Trautman-for-president drive gained momentum.

Major league moguls sat on the sidelines as the minors held the spotlight, with their major sessions slated to get under way tomorrow.

A few trades enlightened the proceedings, however.

Brooklyn announced it had traded Outfielder Augie Galan to Cincinnati for Pitcher Ed Heusser, and the American league champs, the Boston Red Sox, gave Pinky Higgins his release to manage the Roanoke club of the Piedmont league.

The Red Sox signed Pitcher Mace Brown and George Pipgras as scouts.

Reports here were that Billy Jurges, veteran shortstop, would be sent by the Chicago Cubs to manage their triple-A farm, Los Angeles, while advices from Chicago said Jurges had been taken off the active player roster and would remain there as coach.

Washington ditched two catchers, trading Jake Early to the St. Louis Browns for Frank Mancuso, and selling Mickey Guerra to the Philadelphia Athletics.

Bill Veeck, president of the Cleveland club, announced the sale of Krakauskas to Hollywood of the Pacific Coast league, and of Peters to the St. Louis Browns.

Lobby gossip at the major league meetings had the Indians anxious to send George Case and a bundle of cash back to Washington for veteran Center Fielder Stan Spence.

Dead Man's Last Letter Voices Fear

PEDRO, Cal.—(AP)—A last letter from the skipper of a missing ship, whose papers were found in a drifting lifeboat with two decomposed bodies, indicated today that he feared for his safety aboard the vessel.

The Costa Rican motorship Pacifica, with 15 men aboard, had not been heard from since it sailed from Ensenada Nov. 12. Coast guard officers believed it foundered in the violent storms which swept the coast of Lower California last month.

The lifeboat, containing two bodies [illegible] of three men known to have been aboard the coastal freighter, was sighted by the fishing boat Sun Beauty of San Diego and towed to Port Angeles, Mexico, 1,500 miles south of here.

The bodies were too decomposed to be identifiable. One appeared to have been dismembered. One report said one of the bodies was that of a woman.

The papers listed the names of Capt. Kenneth G. MacLean, 53, San Pedro, master of the Pacifica, Alejandro Robilla, 23, Costa Rican interpreter for MacClean, and Luis E. Benavides Rodriques, 21, Colombian radio officer.
